

FURTHER RECRUITS IN BELGIAN STRIKE

HALF MILLION WORKERS HAVE JOINED MOVEMENT TO DATE IS SOCIALISTS' ESTIMATE.

LOOK FOR COMPROMISE

General Sentiment That Government Will Yield to Proposition of Liberal Leaders.

Brussels, April 21.—The general strike for equal suffrage in Belgium enters on its second week with the ranks of the strikers strengthened by the addition of further recruits bringing their total up to nearly 500,000 according to socialist computations. A cheerful spirit prevails among the working classes who feel that the government will be obliged to yield at least to the compromise suggested by the liberal leaders. This provides that the equalization of the parliamentary franchise is to be immediately taken up for consideration.

Cabinet ministers are determined not to surrender if the government still commands a majority of the chamber of deputies when it reassembles tomorrow. The socialist national convention will meet on Wednesday to discuss the situation.

Soldiers Escape.

Fontaine L'Evêque, Belgium, April 21.—Two Belgian soldiers who were on guard at a steel mill protecting the property against the possibility of an attack by strikers left their posts today carrying their rifles with them. They were pursued by a military patrol which was about to capture them when both deserters fired killing one of the pursuers. The pair then escaped into the adjacent forest. All the troops in the garrison were immediately drawn off from strike duty and sent in search of the fugitives.

Guard Cheers Strike.

Liege, April 21.—A detachment of the civil guard called out for the preservation of order this morning cheered a gathering here. The local police expostulated upon which the guardsmen shouted louder, "Hooray to the strike!" much to the scandal of the authorities and to the amusement of a huge body of strikers. The guardsmen were later pursued to return to their homes after being dismissed from duty.

Suspected of Wreck.

Ninove, Belgium, April 21.—A passenger train was wrecked today by a boiler which had been piled on the track at a sharp curve. Sixteen persons were badly injured. The accident was at first attributed to the striking textile workers, but it was later discovered that the rocks had been placed on the line by two mischievous boys. They were arrested.

Few Miners Work.

La Louvière, Belgium, April 21.—A few coal miners descended the pits here today, but the suspension of work was completed, at the metal foundries and quarries, and business is at a standstill throughout the district.

Mayor Aids Fund.

Braine La Compe, Belgium April 21.—The mayor of this town has subscribed $100 daily to the strike fund. Addition at Antwerp.

Antwerp, April 21.—Another 4,000 men joined in the strike at this seaport today. The total number of strikers here now is 25,000.

FAVOR COMBINATION THREE DEPARTMENTS

Uniting of Fire Marshal, Insurance and Oil Inspection Branches Will Aid Fire Prevention.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 21.—The fire prevention program proposed by the legislative fire insurance investigating committee met with cordial approval in the hearings before the legislative committee. Two of these bills were advanced in the assembly during the past week, Bill No. 908-A, providing for periodical inspections of property in cities, and Bill No. 909-A, relating to the payment of fire department dues, having been engrossed. Property owners and insurance men have been unanimous in urging the fire prevention program of the committee.

One of the committee recommendations was that in order to get inspections made without any addition to the present state expenses, the state fire marshal and the oil inspector departments should be consolidated with the insurance department, and that the work of prosecuting arson cases should be placed with the attorney general, as is done in Minnesota. The state fire marshal now has at his disposal about $31,000 a year, all of which could thus be used for fire prevention, according to the committee. The oil inspector's office now spends over $25,000 a year for oil inspection, which the committee says is only a small part of the work of fire prevention. The report of the committee indicated that the greater part of the money now spent for oil inspection was wasted. It stated that by combining the departments in the insurance department all this money can be used for fire prevention under the plan worked out by the investigating committee and the necessary statistical work can be done in the insurance department, which has the needed facilities for that work.

The bills provide that under the proposed merger the staffs of the oil inspector and fire marshal's departments, already under the civil service law, will be continued. In other words, all these positions become civil service appointments in which political considerations are barred.

YOUTH CONFESSES TO TRIPLE MURDER NEAR ELGIN, ILL.

Herman Coppes, 14-Year Old Reformatory Boy Admits Killing Woman And Babies—Relatives Said To Be Implicated.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Elgin, Ill., April 21.—Herman Coppes 14 years old, paroled from the state children's reformatory who confessed yesterday to the murder of Mrs. Maud Sleep and her two children was today held to the grand jury by the coroner's jury which concluded its investigation of the deaths. The apparent absence of any motive to cause the boy to have committed the crime has led the authorities to believe that he may have been induced to murder by another.

Sheriff Charles McBriarty and assistant State's Attorney R. H. Phillips began a new investigation today which indicates that a relative of the victim may have been implicated in the murders. Several clues which point to the possibility that this relative may have induced the boy to have committed the crimes for money are in the possession of the authorities.

EXPECT AGREEMENT IN WAGE DISPUTE

Hope Is Expressed That Controversy Between Eastern Roads and Employees Will Be Settled.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, April 21.—In railroad circles the hope is expressed that before the end of the present week the controversies that have been pending for months between the Eastern roads and their employees will be a fair way of reaching a satisfactory settlement. The arbitration board that has been considering the demands of the firemen is expected to submit its report Wednesday. Tomorrow a committee representing the railroads will meet in conference here with the heads of the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen to settle the wage demands of these two organizations. These demands were presented last January. They are said to be for standard wage rates for men performing the same service on roads of similar grade, and to include a demand for a 15 per cent increase.

VARIOUS ESTIMATES OF MORGAN'S WEALTH

Will of Late J. P. Morgan Leaves Bulk of Fortune to Son—Cannot Tell Actual Value.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, April 21.—Interest in the will of J. P. Morgan made public yesterday centered today in the question of the value of the financier's estate and in what disposition his son would make of the vast collection of Morgan art treasures. Less than twenty million dollars was accounted for in the specific bequests made by Mr. Morgan, the rest being the residuary portion left to the son without mention of the amount.

Some estimates made today place the total estate as high as $125,000,000, but according to a member of J. P. Morgan & Company not even the son himself can tell within many millions the actual value of the fortune. Until appraised by the state the purpose of collecting inheritance tax the question will probably remain open.

MINNESOTA STRIKERS WILL RETURN TO WORK

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Crosby, Minn., April 21.—The strikers of the underground miners of the Cuyuna range is ended. Work is expected to be resumed at the Kennedy, general, as is done in Minnesota. The state fire marshal now has at his disposal about $31,000 a year, all of which could thus be used for fire prevention, according to the committee. The oil inspector's office now spends over $25,000 a year for oil inspection, which the committee says is only a small part of the work of fire prevention. The report of the committee indicated that the greater part of the money now spent for oil inspection was wasted. It stated that by combining the departments in the insurance department all this money can be used for fire prevention under the plan worked out by the investigating committee and the necessary statistical work can be done in the insurance department, which has the needed facilities for that work.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, April 21.—In an opinion Senator White chairman of the senate committee on state affairs Attorney General Owen held today that a legislature may revoke the charter of a corporation at pleasure. A question arose over the Nye bill providing for the revocation of the charter of the interstate bridge company at Superior in case pedestrian passage ways were constructed as soon as were the passage for street cars. In an opinion to Thomas Painter attorney General Owen held that a person of Indian descent who has observed the manners, customs and industries of civilized life is entitled to vote.

"NO WORK NO PAY" TO GET ATTENDANCE

State Treasurer Henry Johnson Proposes Per Diem Payment For Legislators.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 21.—State Treasurer Henry Johnson, himself a former assemblyman, is an advocate of the "No work no pay" policy as applied to the state legislature. He believes that were legislators paid a per diem instead of a flat sum ($500 at present), the closing days of a session would be marked by a full attendance. "The movement for short sessions, say 120 days, might perhaps eliminate some of the criticism that has arisen in the state on account of the long sessions held in recent years," he said. "An amendment should be added to the constitution allowing pay to the members only when attending the sessions. This would probably inspire a better attendance during the latter part of the sessions when as a general rule, appropriations and many other important bills are passed, or rejected sometimes because there is not a better attendance. Town and county boards are receiving pay only when they attend to their duties, and the same should apply to the legislators. I have known members who come here, draw their $500, and very seldom attend the sessions. The state is entitled to better service."

CALIFORNIA ACTION AWAITED IN JAPAN WITH SOME ANXIETY

Tokio Government Has No Sympathy With Irresponsible War Talk Although Intensely Interested In Question.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Tokio, April 21.—The chagrin, disappointment and wounded pride of Japan which last week were vented in angry militant talk by irresponsible people have become modified. The Japanese nation now awaits with intense and evident anxiety the outcome of the deliberation in reference to the California alien, land holding bill proceeding at Sacramento.

The governmental and commercial force of Japan are using the utmost exertions in endeavoring to restrain the unthinking agitators here. They point out that there is not a single responsible person in either country who even dreams of war.

Political Agitation.

It is becoming increasingly evident that the agitation in Japan is largely inspired by a small political group seeking to embarrass the Japanese government and putting forward the American land question to rouse national feeling and to hide their real purpose.

Those newspapers which caused the war talk among the "hot heads" are now advocating a more dignified and conservative attitude and expressing the hope that the citizens of California will spare Japan indignity and the United States embarrassment.

Await Developments.

Washington, April 21.—The situation arising over the pending alien laws in California construed by Japan as discriminatory were practically unchanged here today and officials were awaiting developments in California.

POPE IS STRONGER; ANXIOUS TO RETURN TO WORK AT ONCE

Pontiff Allowed to Sit in Arm Chair—Takes Interest in Activities On the Piazza.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Rome, April 21.—The Pope this morning was in much better spirits and felt stronger. He still suffered somewhat from coughing. As the day was sunny the pontiff was allowed to rise and sit in an arm chair in front of the closed window.

For the first time since his last relapse the Pope was able to look upon the Piazza Di Pietro, which was alive with people. When he saw that a large number of flags were flying he asked the reason and was informed that today was the anniversary of the foundation of Rome 2,663 years ago.

Cities grow with age while men decline, remarked the Pope.

The physicians and attendants of the Pope are taking the greatest precaution to prevent him from making any exertion just now as any activity on his part is still regarded as dangerous. The pontiff, however, is eager to begin work again and often insists that Mgr. Bressan and Mgr. Pesciol, his private secretaries read him the most important of the letters which accumulated during his illness.

The betterment of his health was so marked today that Prof. Marchiatava permitted him a change of diet. The patient's luncheon consisted of rice cooked in the Venetian way, a small piece of chicken breast and half a glass of old Bordeaux.

The Observatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, in publishing the last bulletin on the health of the pope, announced that it will continue to corroborate the condition of the distinguished patient and will endeavor to set right many of the erroneous reports which have been put in circulation, although it recognizes that the press of all parties and in all countries has shown respectful and unanimous interest in the pontiff.

TO MEET OBJECTION OF SUPREME COURT

New State Pure Food Law Will Be Framed to Meet Constitutional Objection on Corn Syrup Act.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 21.—To meet the constitutional objection raised by the United States supreme court against the Wisconsin law providing that corn syrup shall be labeled glucose if that ingredient is its chief constituent, a bill will probably be introduced in the legislature. It will be so framed as to avoid conflict with the federal law. Attorney General Owen who has examined the federal court's recent opinion in the Wisconsin case, is of the opinion that the general law of the state, relating to dairy and food products has not been affected by the decision at Washington. It is certain that Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery will continue his fight for correct labeling of food products sold in Wisconsin.

An officer was landed at Cattaro and conveyed the ultimatum to Cetinje.

THREE BANDITS ARE EXECUTED IN PARIS

Men Who Met Death on Guillotine Refuse to Take Customary Drink of Rum.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Paris, April 21.—None of the three auto bandits who were guillotined in the French capital today shortly before five o'clock would take the big glass of rum offered as usual to men about to be executed. Calémin and Souly just signified their refusal by a nod while Monier declared, "I will not, I am not drinking myself." Without the knowledge that Monday was to be the day of their death the three condemned men played cards Sunday afternoon in jail. Suddenly while the game was going on Calémin rose and said:

"I have a presentiment that this is my last day. Tomorrow I shall see Deibler the executioner." This morning when he was told, "Your time has come" he said "Then this is the day without a tomorrow."

WHAT CONGRESSMEN SAY OF THEMSELVES

In Official Directory Shows That Lawyers Are Again Far in the Lead Together With Democrats.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 21.—What members of the 63rd congress think of themselves became public today when the new congressional directory was issued. The new directory contains biographies of representatives and senators prepared by themselves; Lawyers as usual form the bulk of the legislators; 69 are in the senate and 270 in the house. In the senate there are 8 editors, 6 farmers, 5 business men, 3 bankers, 2 doctors and 1 soldier. The house contains 70 business men, 33 editors, 6 bankers, 6 doctors, 1 author, 1 soldier, 1 preacher and 1 lecturer.

The directory list in the senate is 51 democrats, 41 republicans and 1 progressive.

In the house there are 230 democrats, 127 republicans, 7 progressive republicans, 9 progressives and 1 independent with a vacancy caused by the death of Representative Legare of South Carolina. The house roll call for which several processes have been held by Representative Adair of Indiana will be led in this congress by a new representative, J. W. Ambricone of Alabama. Generally the biographies in the new directory are remarkable for their brevity.

AMERICAN FLEET TO TOUR WORLD AGAIN

Plans Are Being Made to Send Fleet Around the World—Fleet on This Trip Will Be Larger Than in 1907.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 21.—When the American fleet sails for the Mediterranean in January it will be the fleet of peace, the fleet of the famous battle fleet sent around the world in 1907 by former President Roosevelt and a fleet of half again as great tonnage.

The schedule and ports of call have not been worked out yet in the navy department and it has been announced that the big fleet would tour the Mediterranean in division. It was the original plan in connection with the opening of the Panama canal to have the fleet pass through from the Atlantic to the Pacific about January 1st, the tentative date of the opening.

This practically is disarranged by the decision to send the fleet abroad, but it was pointed out today that from the Mediterranean it is comparatively short voyage through the Suez canal and into the Pacific, and the fleet could return that way making the passage through the canal from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The main ships of the line to go on the January cruise, will be the battleships Wyoming, Florida, Arkansas, Delaware, North Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Louisiana, Michigan, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Connecticut, Kansas and Idaho.

Comparing these ships with the battle fleet which went around the world, they aggregate a tonnage of 364,500 as against 223,500. In round figures the muzzle energy of the battle fleet of 1907 summed up five million three hundred million foot pounds. The main batteries of the fleet which will make the Mediterranean cruise will total 9,550,000,000 pounds—almost twice as much. The battleships will be accompanied by all the destroyers that can be spared and an accomplishment accompaniment of repairs and supply ships. This official announcement by Secretary Daniels makes it apparent that the ships will go fully equipped.

DUCHESS OF BEDFORD PROTESTS TAXATION

English Noblewoman Refuses to Pay Taxes When Unrepresented by Bailiff.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Lodon, April 21.—Distraint was levied today upon Duchess Adeline of Bedford, an ardent suffragist, for non-payment of her taxes. A silver cup was taken to satisfy the claims of the tax collector. The duchess took this means of showing her hostility to the taxation of women while they are still without the franchise.

The arson squads of militant suffragettes were out in several places last night, setting fire to a house in Wiltshire belonging to the father of Charles Hobhouse, the chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, and they set on fire the grandstand at the Ilford football grounds, but the flames were quenched by a watchman before they had spread.

WOULD REMOVE BASIS FOR BRITISH CLAIMS

INTRODUCE RESOLUTION FOR REPEAL OF HAY-PAUNCEFOTE AND CLAYTON-BULWER TREATIES.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, April 21.—A joint resolution to abrogate the Hay-Pauncfote and Clayton-Bulwer treaties on which Great Britain is basing her protest against the Panama canal act was introduced today by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon and referred to the foreign relations committee.

One result of the introduction of the resolution probably will be to hasten the definition of the attitude of the administration toward the whole question of the extension of American shipping from tolls in the Panama canal which it is understood President Wilson intended to keep in the background until the tariff legislation had neared conclusion in the house. By tacit agreement negotiations begun last summer by the presentation of Great Britain's preliminary notes have been held in abeyance since the advent of the new administration.

The house passed the Garrett resolution without opposition.

Tariff Up Wednesday.

The democratic tariff bill, as amended by the house caucus, was reintroduced in the house today and will be called up for general debate Wednesday. The house rules committee is considering a resolution to limit the time for discussion and the number of amendments aiming to put the bill through to its passage as rapidly as possible. A resolution offered in the caucus would limit debates to eight legislative days, the number of amendments to two, and permit only two amendments to the bill as a whole.

Wilson's Opinion.

President Wilson told callers today he believed the low rate of the tariff bill justified even though not permitting any further cuts for reciprocity agreements. The president told his visitors the primary consideration was the advantage of the consumer and not necessarily to retention of tactical advantages for future negotiations of reciprocity treaties.

Nominations Today.

President Wilson today sent the following nominations to the senate: Governor of Alaska, J. E. A. Strong of Juneau; surveyor general of Alaska, Charles Davidson of Alaska; auditor of the war department, J. L. Bailey of Missouri; collectors of customs at Astoria, Oregon, William Logan; at Portland, Oregon, Charles C. Burke.

To Probe Assault.

Congressional investigation of the assault on Representative Sims last Friday by C. T. Glover, a local banker and capitalist, was formally asked of the house today in a resolution by Representative Garret of Tennessee who called upon Speaker Clark to select a committee of five to report a course of procedure by next Saturday.

The personal encounter between the men was the result of a speech on the floor of the house wherein Representative Sims attacked Mr. Glover's alleged connection with a real estate proposition in which the government was interested. In a public statement Mr. Glover admits having struck Mr. Sims twice. Mr. Sims was willing to let the affair drop, but other members contend that an attack upon a member of congress for what he has said or done on the floor is in contempt of congress itself.

Chairman Underwood reintroduced the bill today, but did not make any statement of changes by the caucus. Among these were the placing on the free list of shoes, machinery, creolin separators, buckwheat, and rye and the extension of the income tax exemption to savings banks not conducted for profit affecting numerous savings institutions in New York and New England. The entire committee will make its formal report to the house with the minority report from the republicans.

All facts connected with the dismissal of the government's suit against the so-called coffee trust were called today by the senate in the passage of two resolutions presented by Senator Norris. The resolutions, according to Senator Norris, were based on reports that the coffee monopoly did not conduct a sale of the stored coffee which it agreed to do on condition that the suit be dropped.

In his first special message to congress President Wilson today urged the appropriation of $20,000 for the expense of an American commission to the final opium conference of the powers at the Hague next June.

TELLS OF DISEASES OF WISCONSIN CORN

VARIOUS GROWTHS OF FUNGUS WHICH SHOULD BE GUARDED AGAINST.

IS FOURTH OF SERIES

Of Corn Contests Articles Written for the Gazette by Noyes Raessler.

(By Noyes R. Raessler.)

Why Wisconsin Corn is Considered the Best.

The fact that the state of Iowa last year purchased over one thousand bushels of Silver King seed corn from Wisconsin, is a fact that should be a single seedman in our state offered to buy up all the Wisconsin No. 12 and No. 7 that the members of the Wisconsin Experimental Association had to sell last year seemed rather strange to me.

Wisconsin seed corn is listed at $4.00 per bushel, most all seed catalog while the seed corn grown in the corn belt in the southern states retails from $1.50 to $2.75 per bushel and it is warranted to grow. There is always a large surplus of the latter left over every year, while there is a shortage of Wisconsin grown seed corn.

I had always supposed conditions in the south and corn belt states were ideal for corn growing and a few inquiries made at the International Corn Show at Columbia, South Carolina, revealed to me the fact that not only does the corn flourish down there, but a number of its enemies do also.

The corn produced in the warmer climate of the southern states and the southern portion of the corn belt states is subject to a pest known as the corn weevil. This little animal bores into the kernel while the corn is still in the embryo stage. It cannot be detected at that time and in fact not until after the corn has been cured. Along towards spring a tiny hole in the kernel will show where this weevil has escaped, and the germ of this corn has been destroyed.

Another enemy which the corn growers of the south have to contend with is dry rot. This is a disease which enters the ear through the cob and can be detected by the yellowish color of the kernels and the cob. This disease destroys hundreds of bushels of seed corn annually.

There is still another disease to which this corn is subject and that is known as the pink mold. This can be detected by a pink coloring usually on the tips of the ears. Seed corn affected with either of these two diseases cannot be sold in the market. This accounts partly for the poor demand of southern grown seed corn.

It was told by a number of prominent corn growers of the south that Wisconsin corn is practically immune against the two fungus diseases and is not easily affected by weevils the first year. However, corn is a very sensitive plant and is largely affected by its environment. By the time our Wisconsin corn has been grown in the south three years it loses its original characteristics and becomes practically southern corn. The long rainy season and warm weather change our hard kernels into soft southern seed. Therefore they must come back to Wisconsin for a fresh supply of seed if they expect to get the best results of their rich corn land.

Our Wisconsin booth was crowded with visitors from the day we arrived at the corn exposition until we packed up. Hundreds of boys and girls of the south visited our booth, making inquiries about our different varieties of pure bred corn and most of them took down notes. They had read of our great Wisconsin corn and were very curious to know what it looked like.

I shall never forget the expression of Jerry Moore's face when he saw for the first time our champion exhibits of Silver King and Golden Glow. Jerry Moore, it will be remembered, produced the greatest yield from one acre of corn in the United States last year. His home is in Carolina and he has never seen anything like our Wisconsin exhibit before. Although this land produced two hundred and twenty-eight bushels of corn from one acre, he envied the boys of Wisconsin who could sell their seed at $3.00 per bushel, even though they could not raise more than one hundred bushels to an acre or possibly seventy-five. I learned from Jerry Moore that the boys in the south have a far different proposition before them when they try to raise corn than the boys of Wisconsin. For instance, it cost Jerry Moore over $80 for fertilizer alone. This together with other expenses made every bushel cost him forty three cents, leaving a very small profit for his work. He has very little chance to realize an extra income from the sale of seed, because his seed could not be shipped north and the south is already overstocked with the kind of seed he could produce. Very few of the boys in the south can afford the luxury of a two horse team to do their plowing. This is true also of the men in the south. The plowing is largely done by one horse or no mule. The boys have no barrier to fall back on for fertilizer and clover is unknown in the south. Not even June grass will grow there.

With these facts in mind it is easy to say that the boys who take part in the corn contests of the south certainly require plenty of gift. There are no dairy farms whatever in the south and with no clover to help enrich the soil, it will be an unusually difficult proposition to bring up their conditions for corn growing quite to those of Wisconsin. The average yield per acre for the entire state of South Carolina was less than eighteen bushels last year. Wisconsin, with a fraction over thirty-six bushels per acre, stands next to the highest in the United States in the yield per acre. At present only about 60% of the farmers are growing pure bred Wisconsin seed corn. As soon as the other 40% wake up there is no question but what we can make Wisconsin occupy a position on top of the list in yield.

HOOPER TO DELIVER MEMORIAL ADDRESS

Superintendent of State Institute for Blind on Decoration Day Program—Orchestra to Play.

Preparations for the observance of Memorial Day, which falls on Friday, May 30, have been partially completed by a committee of W. H. Sargent Post No. 30, Grand Army of the Republic. Superintendent J. T. Hooper has accepted an invitation to deliver the address on the afternoon program at the Myers theatre and the Institute for the Blind orchestra and chorus will give the instrumental and vocal music. Many Janesville people who have not had the opportunity to hear these talented organizations will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity at this time. It is probable that the usual street parade will be given by the able bodied members of the G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans and one of the city's bands, and the graves of veterans in Oak Hill and Mt. Olivet cemeteries will be strewn with flowers by a committee of school children. The W. R. C. will take part in the preparations for the observance and the G. A. R. memorial service will be read. Further arrangements will be announced when made.

IMPORTANT DECISION IN AUTO COURSE CASE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, April 21.—A spectator who stands near an auto race course knowing that cars are to be raced at high speed is taking a risk, but if injured is not necessarily guilty of negligence. Such was the gist of a unanimous decision handed down today by the appellate division of the state supreme court in affirming a judgment of $22,500 awarded to Thomas Muller against the Pope-Hartford Auto company. Muller had a leg torn off during the Vanderbilt cup race in Long Island in 1910 by the Pope-Hartford car driven by Jack Fleming.

Chicago & Northwestern. UNION PACIFIC OFFICIAL PASSES THROUGH THIS CITY

P. S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific railroad, passed through this city yesterday morning on a special train on his way to St. Paul. G. W. Daly, superintendent of Northwestern Wisconsin division of the Northwestern railroad, and E. E. Nash, superintendent of the Madison division accompanied Mr. Lovett to his destination.

Very fast time was made by a special train, making the run from Chicago to Janesville in one hour and twenty minutes and the remainder of the journey at a mile a minute rate. A new crew and engines were taken on here.

The engine of the Beloit Sand and Gravel company which has been at the yards for overhauling was taken to Beloit Saturday night.

Fireman Lee has returned after a short honeymoon in Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Lee are residing at 336 Linn street.

Engineers Talmage, Starrett, Geslan, Walsh, and Williams, Fireman Fowley and Dispatchers Lee are laying off to attend the funeral of Engineer Lewis, who was one of the most respected railroad men in this section of the state.

Engine 117 double headed train number 544 to Harvard.

The "Safety" First, committee leaves for Chicago tomorrow.

Engine 1025 double headed train number 578 from Harburoo so as to take out train number 513 to Elroy today.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

One driver on the engine of train number 6 from Mineral Point left the track yesterday morning three miles east of Gratiot. The damage was slight the wheels being put on by the crew and the train was only about ten minutes late.

A new change has been made regarding the connection between here and Milwaukee. The Milwaukee train which has been following the Madison train out leaving at 10:45, has discontinued operation of the coach to Milton and return. The Milwaukee coach is now taken out on the Madison train at 10:40, and put on the Madison to Milwaukee train at Milton Junction.

Assistant Superintendent of the dining service, A. A. Barling, was in this city yesterday and today arranging a change in the lunch room at the station. Mrs. Elchmeyer is to take charge hereafter.

Real novelty being so extreme a rarity one is not surprised to learn that the circular saw made of paper that can cut through wood does not represent an entirely new idea after all. A NEW LEASE OF LIFE

In the Spring Time All Nature Takes on New Health. Why Don't You? Chiropactic Will Give YOU A New Lease On Life!

Every healthy man and woman enjoys life to the fullest when his or her begin to bud, when all the universe awakens to the beauty of the coming season.

Yet many are suffering, are merely living from day to day without the pleasures that would be theirs if they had perfect health. Many are hoping against hope for relief, without really trying to get better, many are just feeling poorly, many lack ambition for everything and anything, simply because there is a drain on their vitality somewhere and they do not know where.

Some have taken medicines and poisons, others have gone to Doctors for pills, etc., all of which treat symptoms, but get no relief.

The way to get well, the way to health and happiness is to get at the CAUSE of the disease and remove it. The wonderful science of CHIROPRACTIC points the way to perfect health and it is the only science that goes straight at the cause of disease.

GINK AND DINK.

Sport Snap Shots

by Dan McCarty

The New Orleans Pelicans appear to have a star-hunter in young Rube Evans, a southpaw. He has stood big league players on their heads in exhibition games this spring. Last year, pitching for Dallas, he won 22 and lost 12 games. He fanned 194 batters, passed 69 and allowed but 227 hits.

Larry Lajotte, veteran second baseman of the Cleveland Naps and one of the most feared batters in the American League, has set out to be a base-stealer this season. He has calmly told his teammates, Joe Jackson, one of the base runners in the league, that he intends to beat him swiping sacks. Joe stole 35 last year; Larry, 18.

Jess Willard, the Kansas cowboy and white hope, tallest heavyweight in captivity, is on the Pacific Coast looking for matches. He says he prefers Luther McCarty, but bars nobody. Jess isn't so persnickety as some fighters who might be mentioned as more anxious to dodge matches than make them. He is about to take Tom Jones, who has not been getting Jess the matches he wanted.

John Paul Jones, holder of the American amateur record of 4:15.25 for the mile, probably will meet Abe Kiviat, his greatest rival at the distance, this spring. Kiviat finished ahead of Jones in the Olympic games last year and has been showing better form this spring. The two probably will settle matters in the A. A. U. championship meet.

Hans Wagner, veteran shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates, takes a kid to raise every year during the baseball season. His pal, pupil and roommate this year is Everett Hooper, recruit infielder.

Sterrett, former Princeton player, now with the New York Americans, is filling in quite acceptably at first base while it is being decided whether or not Frank Chance is to be playing manager and whether Hal Chase is to play second base or first base.

Bud Anderson, who so decisively beat Kayo Brown in fifteen rounds, is another contender for the lightweight crown likely to prove dangerous to Joe Rivers. With Johnny Kilbane threatening to turn lightweight, as well, Rivers had better watch his P's and Q's and prepare to repel boarders.

The first no-hit game of the season has been credited to Pitcher Ralph Cutting of the Milwaukee team of the American Association. Empires John Stone and Connolly have decided that the one doubtful hit credited to Louisville should have been charged as an error.

F. SCHULTE'S AMBITIOUS TO ECLIPSE H. ZIMMERMAN; RABBIT'S FOOT AIDS PLAN

Frank Schulte, robber of bases and rurler of bases, is proving a regular demon at the spring training of the Chicago Cubs at Tampa, Florida. Schulte declares that he is out to beat Heinie Zimmerman to the batting championship of the National league this year. He has made a good start.

As a part of his plan for carrying off the batting honors, Schulte wears in his high third pocket the foot of a rabbit, shot by Frank himself in the light of the crescent moon. The unfortunate rabbit was bagged on Frank's Georgia plantation just a few days ago.

BASEBALL NOTES

At St. Paul, the Detroit Tigers will have Sam Crawford, and that's considerable. "Wahoo" is tearing the horsehide to pieces by his heavy hitting.

Manager Stoval, of the Browns, has released Pitcher Napier, Infielder Roche and Outfielder Sloan to the Montgomery team, of the Southern League.

The chances are that George Burns will have a regular berth in the outfield of the Giants. George has been showing Manager McGraw the real article this spring.

The poor condition of Catchers Henry and Almsmith has caused Manager Griffith, of the Washington team, to get busy looking for another backstop.

The injury to Vic Saler, who wrenched his ankle recently, will no doubt prevent the Cubs from making a quick get-away in the National pennant chase.

GREATEST PLAYER NOW SUSPENDED

The world's greatest baseball player, stellar batter, fielder and baserunner, Tyus Raymond Cobb, property of the Detroit Tigers, is now suspended from big league baseball. His refusal to sign up at the salary the Tigers offered him and his failure to report at the opening of the season automatically suspended him and he can only be reinstated by application to and action of the national commission.

A salary of $15,000 a year is reported to have been his demand, while Detroit is said to have offered about the $9,000 per annum for which he has played for the last three years. Negotiations seem to be at a standstill between him and the club.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS BALK AT REGULATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 21.—Senator Scott's plan of having the state conduct political campaigns of all political parties and pay all expenses will be given a hearing before the committee on Finance Wednesday afternoon. The idea of the bill is to put all candidates for office on a par, so that the rich man will have no better opportunity to be elected than the poor man.

Within ten days after the nomination of candidates for state officers by a political party according to the terms of the bill, the state treasurer shall pay to the state chairman of that political party for campaign purposes a sum equal to twenty-five cents for each vote cast at the last preceding general election for the nominee for governor of that political party. This provision is inserted in the bill so that each party will get all of the voters out to the polls. The state chairman shall retain one-half of the amount and expend it for the legitimate campaign expenses of the state organization. The other one-half shall be divided proportionately among the county chairmen, to be spent in a like manner. The agent of any political party who will accept any other contributions from any other source shall be deemed guilty of a felony and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of not less than one year nor more than three years.

In a nutshell, the bill provides that the state shall pay 25 cents for each vote cast at a general election. This money to be expended to aid in the election of all of the candidates of each party. Senator Scott claims that such a measure will get out the complete vote of the state, that poor men will be given an equal opportunity to become candidates for office, and he sees no reason why the state should not pay these legitimate campaign expenses. He points to the fact that during the Stephenson senatorial campaign the expenditures show that $180 was spent for each vote cast.

Roses From Italy.

The rose, so long considered the floral emblem of England, was not known in that country until the early part of the fifteenth century. Rose trees were then brought from Italy and planted in the royal gardens. They were sent as presents from the holy father and highly esteemed by royalty. It became the custom to carve them over the doors of the confessional as holy flowers, hence the term sub rosa (under the rose) used to mean "with secrecy."—Ave Maria.

MORGAN'S WILL.

Ever since the death of John Pierpont Morgan there has been much speculation as to the possible disposal of his millions in money, securities and works of art. Of all his vast fortune but little goes to charity, and after bequests of some $20,000,000, the residue of his vast fortune is to his son. The art treasures are to be disposed of by the heirs but the request is made they be kept. Employees and servants are remembered with substantial sums. However the most remarkable section of his whole will is found in the following opening paragraph:

"I commit my soul into the hands of my Savior in full confidence that having redeemed it and washed it in his most precious blood he will present it faultless before the throne of my heavenly Father; and I treat my children to maintain and defend, at all hazard and at any cost of personal sacrifice, the blessed doctrine of the complete atonement for sin through the blood of Jesus Christ, once offered, and through that alone."

Briefly summarized Mr. Morgan disposed of his fortune in the following bequests:

To his wife, Mrs. Satterlee, (to be bequeathed at her death as she shall direct); $1,000,000. Trust fund from his father (amount not given). Other funds sufficient to make her annual income $100,000. His country place, "Cragston," and all its contents. His Madison avenue home and contents (except family portraits and wines).

To J. P. Morgan, Jr.—Outright gift $3,000,000. All his wines. His rights and titles in Metropolitan museum and other similar institutions. His private art gallery and its contents. All the residue of his estate without conditions.

To daughter, Mrs. Satterlee, (to be bequeathed at her death as she shall direct); $3,000,000. (To be bequeathed by Mrs. Satterlee among her children as she may elect).

To daughter, Mrs. W. P. Hamilton, (to be bequeathed at her death as she shall direct); $3,000,000. (To be bequeathed by Mrs. Hamilton among her children as she may elect).

To daughter, Anne T. Morgan, (to be bequeathed at her death as she shall direct); $3,000,000. (If said daughter shall be married and have no children and her husband shall survive her she may leave him not to exceed $1,000,000).

To his Sons-in-law—W. P. Hamilton (outright) $1,000,000. H. L. Satterlee (outright) $1,000,000.

Public Bequests—To St. George's Episcopal church, New York (a trust) $500,000; to archdiocese of Orange (a trust) $100,000; to House of Rest for Consumptives, $100,000.

To Friends and Servants—To Dr. J. W. Marcoe, life income, to continue for his widow upon his death, per year, $25,000; Miss Belle Da Costa Green, his librarian, $50,000; Miss Ada Thurston, library employee, $10,000; Capt. W. B. Porter, his sailing master, $15,000; C. W. King, his private secretary, $25,000; each employee of J. P. Morgan & Co., and the employees of the house of J. P. Morgan & Co., a year's salary; Edward Phillips, his valet, $15,000; Jenny B. Tracy, sister-in-law, $100,000; Clara T. Hoppin, sister-in-law, $100,000; Julia N. Florence M. Rbett, of his household, annual income of $10,000; Ethel B. Wallace, income for life on $100,000; each member of the Corsair club, silver token of value of $1,000; Mary G. McElvaine, a friend, annuity of $25,000; J. Beaver Webb, a friend, $250,000; Mrs. Alice Mason, a friend, an income for life, per year, $5,000; Margaret Henderson, his London housekeeper, annuity of $2,500; Henry Pendry, his London housekeeper, annuity of $1,250; Mrs. A. King, his Dover housekeeper, annuity of $1,250; J. P. McLeod, his Dover house gardener, annuity of $1,250; each servant of his household, New York, Cragston, London, and Dover house, other than those above mentioned, outright, $1,000.

Mr. Morgan was a man of great understanding of the world at large. His vast fortune, accumulated by years of skillful generalship in the field of finance, has practically remained intact. In some cases the bequests have attachments to them as to the children of the second and third generations, but most generally speaking the bequests made are absolute. It is really a most remarkable document.

JOIN THE BOOSTERS.

Starting tomorrow a whirlwind campaign for members of the proposed Twenty-five Thousand club will be begun. Through the kindness of the Southern Wisconsin Sand and Gravel company, substantial prizes are offered for the largest lists of members obtained and the contest promises to be most interesting. Join the new club and help boost Janesville. Your dollar for membership fee carries with it just as much influence as the man who subscribes a hundred dollars. Every member is to have an equal vote in selecting the directors and these men will handle the affairs of the club. The awakening of civic spirit is a great step towards a bigger Janesville. Even the women are interested and they can become members as well as the men. Special pins, to take the place of the buttons, have been ordered, so they can display their booster buttons as well as others. It is an organization that is open to everyone and every resident of Janesville should affiliate themselves with the club.

While the weather is still against the baseball fans, the season has started and the grand races for the pennants is on. Much interest is displayed in Janesville in the daily ball reports of the results of the games and perhaps enough enthusiasm will be aroused later to have a team to represent Janesville in the field.

It has been decreed that there shall be no more "starboard" and "port" in the navy. Next thing we know somebody will be meddling with the golf language.

If Willis Moore had known in advance what President Wilson was going to do to him, that Washington weather on March might have been a different story.

Mr. Crane of Chicago may really get an ambassadorship at last, if he can postpone his comments until after he gets out of the country.

A contemporary speaks of "the American Perry" as the discoverer of the North Pole. This is error. Perry discovered the sandbar at Erie, Pa.

The people of Waterproof, La., evidently don't want to go to the trouble of changing its name. They are strengthening the levees.

A considerable number of men will soon be engaged in the interesting task of trying to figure their incomes down to $3,999.99.

Another infallible sign of spring is the annual announcement from Annapolis that henceforth hazers can expect no mercy.

It seems to be considered perfectly parliamentary in Illinois to call the Speaker of the House a "dirty little shrimp."

The Washington suffragists should beware. Getting up a female brass band may prove more absorbing than seeking votes.

Probably the fact is that a truly temperamental actress has no emotion to waste on a mere process server.

Baseball is regenerating the Filipinos. Why not try it on the Mexicans, with Governor Bleas as chief umpire?

In the event of divorce the Minnesota artist who married a suffragist and took her name can ask for his maiden name back.

Yes, literature can be made to pay. An eastern author raises mushrooms in his cellar.

Why don't the men in the English prisons demand equal rights and go on a hunger strike?

New York is to have the largest court house in the world. And surely New York needs it.

PURE MOMENT

Styles in Whiskers. The William Cullen Bryants will not be worn much this coming summer, as people have learned that the full-faced style of whiskers is more suited to cold, wintry weather than to the balmy summer variety. It is possibly true that the long flowing curtains will still be affected by some of the old-fashioned men but fancy dressers will discard them. For a neat and nifty spring whisker, not too cold and not too warm, the Charles W. Bryant style is recommended. It gives the face the the protection that is really needed during the fine balmy months for a man with a strong constitution. The Henry Clay Fricks will doubtless still be popular. It is an old standard style for those who prefer the bush effect parted in the middle and brushed back toward the ears and changes little as the years go by. It does not serve much as a chest protection, but for concealing the chin from the gaze of the idle bystander it is unsurpassed.

The G. Bernard Shaw, which is a sort of compromise between the William Cullen Bryant and the Henry Clay Fricks, will not find much favor according to indications. It is a bit long and is somewhat of a drag on the chin, not being long enough to rest its weight upon the bosom of the wearer.

The Joe Cannon is strictly passe this spring and correct dressers will have none of it.

The Jeff will be popular with small men who wish to look dignified. It is a cool whisker and rests high on the cheeks out of the way of the process of Fletcherization. It is not profuse enough to stop any noticeable amount of conversation which is on its way to the open air.

The Jim Ham Lewis pinks are coming in again this spring stronger than ever.

From the Hickeyville Clarion. Jerry Hostetter has received a letter from his brother Bill, who is out west, to the effect that Bill will not be able to visit him this spring as he had intended. The governor refused to sign the parole.

When Ezra Simms wants to doll himself up for a formal dress party he puts on a collar and necktie.

Small Print Bad for Children.—Small print leads the young scholar to look too closely at his books. He is not yet familiar with the forms of the words, and his eyesight has not yet reached its full acuteness. For easy vision he must have retinal images larger than those which satisfy the trained reader. To obtain these larger images he brings the book too near to his eyes, or his eyes too near the book, and this is apt to be injurious.

JOHN MUIR SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OF AGE TODAY

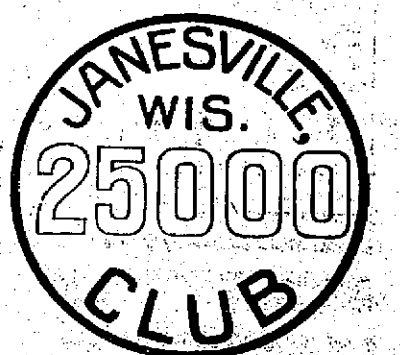

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Martinez, Cal., April 21.—At the home of John Muir a flood of congratulatory letters and messages was delivered today to remind the famous explorer and naturalist of his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. Although Mr. Muir was born in Scotland of Scottish parentage, the associations of almost his entire lifetime have been American. After arriving with his parents in America he lived on a farm in Wisconsin and his education was received principally at the State University at Madison. After completing his four years' course at the university he entered actively upon a career that was to bring him fame as a geologist, explorer and naturalist. He visited the Arctic regions in search of the DeLong expedition and has since traveled extensively in all of the six continents.

Ardent Enthusiasm

There lives in this sturdy little city a fine old gentleman who has such a fine sense of honor that he would rather continue in his present line of work at a modest salary than to go where he could earn several times his income because he feels that he can do more good here. "I could make several thousand a year more if I'd go to—but I won't for I couldn't do the work conscientiously. I'd be nothing more than a hireling, and in a few years I'd be forgotten in all probability, despised for having used my talents for purely mercenary motives." This is the type of man we like to know, and although some persist in saying, "Every man is for himself now-a-days," let us bear in mind that such examples are becoming more numerous and that with thorough organization of the 25,000 Club we will steadily march on to a higher plane.

WIFE DEFENDS NAME OF MURDERED TAILOR

George Dietz and Mrs. George Dietz.

Mrs. George Dietz, widow of the rich Chicago tailor and milliner who was murdered in his home early Monday, defends his memory indignantly against the imputation that his murder was an act of revenge. Police have sought to connect his death with the recent death of Edna Ruth Fredrickson from an illegal operation, and a former sweetheart of the Fredrickson girl has been sought by them. Stories have it that Dietz had been dogged for some time before his death by men of threatening aspect.

BIG BUTTON CONTEST STARTS ON TUESDAY

WEEK'S WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN STARTS TOMORROW—ENTHUSIASM SHOWN.

SECURE SUPPLY EARLY

M. P. Richardson's Office in Hayes Block Headquarters For Securing Supply of Lists and Credentials.

"For Bigger and Better Janesville." That is the slogan of the Boosters. The big contest starts Tuesday noon. If you do not wear a button of the new "25,000 Club." The aspirants for the prizes offered by the Southern Wisconsin Sand and Gravel Co. of $50, $25, $15 and $10 for the first, second, third and fourth prizes for securing the most number of members between Tuesday noon, April 22nd and Tuesday noon, April 29th, can secure their buttons and lists at the office of M. P. Richardson in the Hayes block, fourth floor, before noon Tuesday, tomorrow.

It is going to be a case of "Whose got the button" from now on and it is a fair judge by the talk about the city it means a big campaign that will result in the selling of a thousand buttons and signing up an equal number of members before Tuesday, April 29th. Chairman Frank Croak of the committee handling the organization, has the check for $100, left at the Gazette office by the Southern Wisconsin Sand and Gravel company for the prizes and the committee will handle the whole affair. The lists and buttons will be issued by Mr. Richardson, of the committee and the return will be made to him.

Spurred on by the offer of the various prizes donated by the Southern Wisconsin Sand and Gravel Company, the coming contest promises to be a stern winter from start to finish. Already the enthusiasm is displayed by the appearance on the streets this morning of the Hanley Bros. wagon with a huge banner, "Boost Janesville" on one side and "25,000 Club" on the other. E. J. Murphy, manager of the company stated he was going to urge every grocer in the city to do likewise and doubtless many of them will.

As stated Saturday, one contractor J. A. Denning, secured twenty-five buttons and a list for his workmen, all of whom it was expected would join the new club. Reports from lists placed throughout the city last week also show that many have joined, some of them traveling men who became enthused while in the city and will go outside to spread the glad tidings of what Janesville is doing.

In order to meet the demand for a plan similar to the booster button, for ladies who wish to join, the committee have ordered a supply from Milwaukee and expect them here on Wednesday of this week. Many ladies have already joined the club and more have expressed desires to take out lists if they could have pins instead of buttons to display. The high school pupils are enthusiastic over the plan to boost Janesville and they very air seems filled with booster currents coming from all directions.

"It is going to be a big thing for Janesville," said one business man today. "Why the enthusiasm is just as catching as measles and I think everyone has had a touch of that disease during their lives. You hear it talked of everywhere and the people that are doing the most talking are the very people who should be most interested, the workmen men and women, the clerks in the stores and young professional men. It is a big thing and the club is an assured success."

FEAST OF PASSOVER BEGINS AT SUNDOWN

Rabbi S. W. Rotstein of This City Goes to Chicago For Observance of Jewish Holy Day.

Beginning at sundown tonight and continuing for one week the annual feast of the Passover will be celebrated in Jewish homes and synagogues. The feast is symbolic of the joy of the emancipation of the Jewish people.

S. W. Rotstein of this city went to Chicago this morning and will remain there the greater part of the week where he will join in the observance of the holy week. Mr. Rotstein is a rabbi in the Jewish church and will take a prominent part in the religious ceremonies at one of the Chicago synagogues.

In most orthodox Jewish households the door will be left open during the feast of unleavened bread, and this custom had its beginning in the days when Christianity and superstition, stalking arm in arm, joined in a whole sale slaughter of Jews. In the middle ages it was charged by the Christians that the Hebrews often slaughtered gentle babies and used their blood in the preparation of "matzoth," or unleavened bread. Unable to defend themselves against their persecutors the Jews sought to placate their Jews during the feast, that the Christian might enter and see for himself that his gross and superstitious charge was without foundation. American Jews have to some extent discontinued the "open door" custom, but among the late arrivals, especially from Russia, it still prevails.

Christianity in India.

In South India alone there are today fully 1,000 Christian college graduates, leaders in the life of Christian communities. Of the 25,000 students in higher educational institutions 54% are in Christian colleges.

Circuit Court: Judge Grimm will hold a session of the circuit court here tomorrow afternoon. Time for filing papers for action at the May term of court expires on Saturday of this week.

WILL SELL TICKETS FOR CLEAN-UP DAYS

Proceeds to Pay for Cost of Carting Away Rubbish and Filth—Help of Schools Assured.

Financing the clean-up campaign this spring will be done in practically the same manner as proved successful last year. Tickets were sold at a cost of twenty-five cents each which entitled the purchaser to have one load of rubbish hauled, or additional loads at the same price. The proceeds of the ticket sale not only paid for the expense of collections but left a surplus of $21.50 which can be used to advantage in the coming campaign.

Committees will be appointed in the different wards of the city to conduct the ticket sales, and they and their assistants will make a thorough canvass of the city, a certain district being assigned to each. Superintendent of the City School H. C. Buehl has assured the officers of the clean-up campaign that he will request the teachers of the city to interest their pupils in the clean-up program, and it is also hoped that some of them will consent to serve on the ward committees.

It is feared that some difficulty may be experienced in hiring sufficient teams to do the carting on the clean-up days as a scarcity of them is already reported. Every effort will be made to prevent such a contingency arising.

The health officer requests property owners to unite with him in making the city sanitary. Most people do not require such a request, and it is hoped that all will see that their premises are "cleaned up" so that when later the "cleaning up" days come there will be less to do. It is hoped that all will be more "careful" about mixing garbage with ashes, as the latter cannot be used for filling low places.

Medical men, by experiments, have proved that germs of typhoid fever, tuberculosis and probably other diseases are distributed by flies. Moral: "Swat the fly," the killed fly may mean millions less next September.

Living typhoid bacilli have been found in a fly's stomach six days after they had sucked them in. Germs have been found in the fly's specks two days after they were eaten by the fly. Tuberculosis germs have been found fifteen days after they were taken into the stomach of the fly. Swat the fly.

STREET IMPROVEMENT WORK IS UNDER WAY

Finishing Touches Being Made to Washington Street—Start Work on Milwaukee Avenue.

Favorable weather for a week past has made possible the commencement of work on street improvements for which contracts were let last fall. Gustaf & Graham, the Freeport contractors, are putting the finishing touches on the Washington street macadam. Two teams are hauling top-dressing, stone from the city crusher plant, and the steam roller is being run over the entire newly paved portion from Mineral Point avenue to the city limits to pack it firmly. The pavement came through the winter in good shape.

Superintendent George Croft expects to move the company's machinery to Milwaukee avenue some time tomorrow and will at once begin excavation for the macadam to be laid between Garfield avenue and Harrison street. Eleven hundred cubic yards of material will have to be removed. It is estimated that the work can be finished in three weeks' time under favorable conditions.

P. Ryan & Sons, the contractors to whom was let the work for paving three blocks on Jefferson avenue with macadam on a gravel foundation have submitted their contract to the firm of Hughes & Knight, who expected to begin operation on the gravel foundation is to be three inches thick in the center and two at the curb, and the macadam coat of corresponding depth, these measurements being applied to the material as packed by the steam roller.

WILL START OILING OF STREETS IN MAY

City Closes Contract With Cudahy Refining Company—Prompt Shipments Are Promised.

Street oiling in Janesville will begin early in May, according to a statement made by Mayor Father's this morning. This announcement may dispel those who hoped for an earlier pouring of oil on troubled streets, but it must be borne in mind that poor oil indifferent results are obtained by applying oil to the street surface when it is cold. This is very noticeable on the streets that were treated last summer, the applications made during the hot weather, in that on East street, giving the most satisfactory and lasting results.

Herbert Klase, a representative of the Cudahy Refining company of Chicago, was in the city Saturday and closed a contract with the city for the purchase of from 75,000 to 100,000 gallons of 60 to 65-per cent asphaltic oil from the Coffeyville, Kansas, refineries. He promised that prompt shipments would be made, and that the first tank-car of it would arrive about May 1. City Clerk J. P. Hammarling is corresponding with the company's manufacturing oil storage tanks with a view to purchase. The city officers are awaiting developments in their negotiations to obtain a site for the storage tanks before taking definite steps in that direction.

MAKE EXPERIMENTS TO STERILIZE SOIL FOR TOBACCO BEDS

W. T. Pomeroy and Co., Devise a System to Secure Quick Growth of Tobacco Plants.

Edgerton, April 21.—Tobacco growers in the vicinity of Edgerton, the center of the Wisconsin tobacco industry, are greatly interested in experiments that are being carried on by the firm of W. T. Pomeroy & Co., relative to the sterilization of soil for tobacco beds. This firm is recognized throughout the different tobacco growing sections as the introducers and exclusive growers of the celebrated strain of seed known as the Comstock variety, most popular among farmers and buyers of cigar leaf tobacco.

While for years they have been experimenting and trying to discover new and improved methods of growing the weed, the sterilizing of soil for tobacco beds is now receiving their careful consideration. This work was done under the supervision of Prof. Johnson, of the State Experimental Station.

A galvanized iron pan, ten feet in length, six in width and ten inches in depth, was placed bottom side up on the ground, which had previously been prepared for the seed beds. Five steam, supplied by a twenty horse power traction engine, was turned into the pan by means of a large rubber hose; the steam pressure within the pan being fifty pounds per square inch. During the process the soil was thoroughly sterilized to a depth of twelve inches at a temperature of 212 degrees.

On most of the beds the pan was left for a period of thirty minutes, while on other plots it was used at different lengths of time, varying from fifteen to forty-five minutes.

The intent of this process is to thoroughly warm the soil, and in this manner to aid the plants in securing an early start to prevent danger of root rot and all forms of fungus growth, and to destroy all weed seeds of foreign nature.

Should this experiment prove successful it will be used extensively in the future by growers of leaf tobacco. The result of this method will be looked forward to with great interest and the public will be given full details soon as received.

Uncle Snooks Puzzled.
"What puzzles me," said Uncle Snooks, as he looked up from a book he was consulting, "is this: If a man is standing on the side of a hill or mountain, how is he to settle in his mind whether he is on an acclivity or a declivity? According to my dictionary here, the former is 'a slope up' and the latter 'a slope down.' I've never yet seen a slope up that didn't slope down."

Needed Mamma.
Little four-year-old was learning to sew. She made some beautifully small stitches and mamma said, "Now make a long row of those tiny baby stitches." After awhile the little fingers became tired and when mamma came to look again, there were some long ones. On being asked why she had not made them all tiny she replied, "Why, the baby stitches needed some mamma."

Modern Roads.
They were standing along the broad highway, which was lumpy, but by and by they came to a section that was well oiled, the joy of all motorists. "Well," remarked the sensitive person in the rear seat, "they may say what they please about the perfection of the ancient Roman roads, but I am here to testify that they are not in it with the roads of modern grease."—Judge.

Worth $1000 More
But costs only $300 to $500 more than some other car you may be considering

First of all we want to impress upon the motor car buyers of this community that the Chalmers "Thirty-Six" is a good car.

It is exceptionally good. It is worth more than passing notice. Because there is no other car at the price which offers so many fine features and so much real value.

This car has a really wonderful motor, 47-in. bore and 5 1/4-in. stroke. It develops full 36 horsepower at low engine speeds and goes as high as 45 horsepower when the motor is turning over rapidly. But the beauty of it is the great power at slow speeds. You know that means "she is there" on the hills.

The four forward speed transmission is an advanced feature hitherto found only on the highest priced cars. And the gears in Chalmers transmissions are ground to eliminate all noise. You positively cannot get this feature in any car under the Chalmers price list and in no other at this price either.

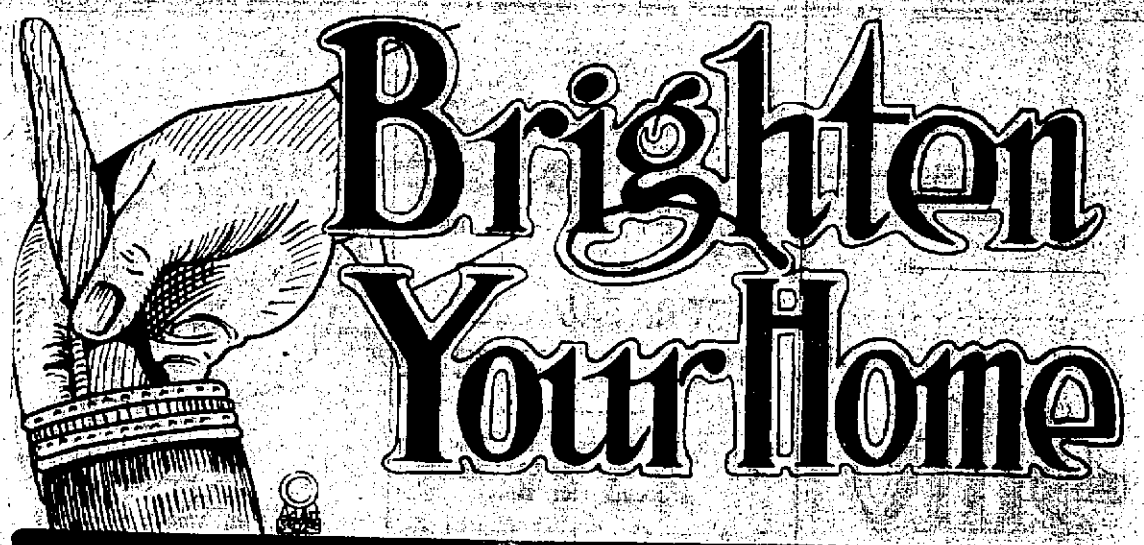

Utmost comfort is found in the deep 11-inch upholstery, the Turkish cushions, the long wheel base, (118-in.), big wheels and tires (36-in. x 4-in.), the long springs, the roomy body.

In looks, style, grace, elegance no car offers more than the "Thirty-Six." It is a beautiful car in every line.

And lastly—the "Thirty-Six" is a factory built car. Not assembled from parts bought here and there—but actually built by the company whose name it bears. There is one inspector to every 13 workmen in the Chalmers factory. That's your assurance that Chalmers cars are built right.

Come see the "Thirty-Six" and learn for yourself why it is such a good car—such a wonderful value for the price $1050 (fully equipped, f. o. b. Detroit.)

AMERICAN GIRLS HAVEN'T A CORNER ON BEAUTY AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Senora Dona Luz Mendez.

All those benighted persons who harbor the notion that American girls have a corner on beauty at the nation's capital should look long and earnestly at the accompanying picture. It is of Senora Dona Luz Mendez, daughter of the Guatemalan minister to the United States. She is regarded as one of the most beautiful young women at the capital. She arrived in Washington not long ago from Paris and is spending the winter with her father.

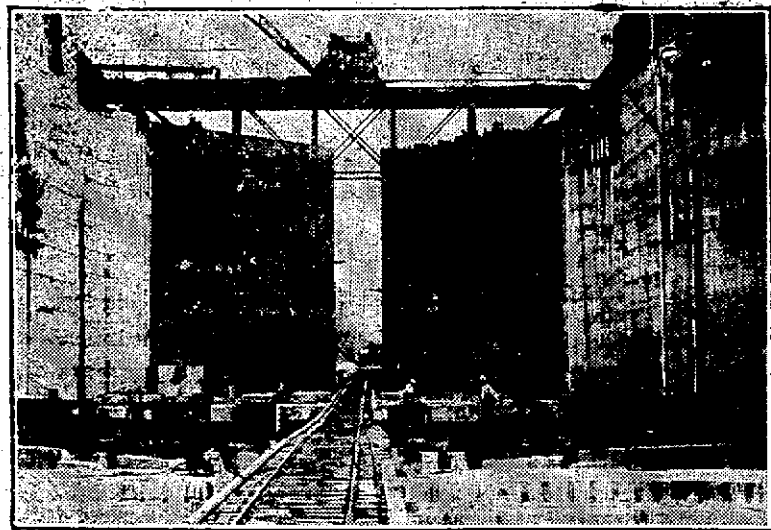

FORTUNE SMILES AGAIN ON JACK CUDAHY; HE GETS BIG SUM IN FAMILY SETTLEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cudahy.

Jack Cudahy, son of the dead millionaire packer, Michael Cudahy, has won his fight for a share in the $12,000,000 estate of his father, whose will disinherited him. The terms of a compromise with the family $1,000,000 has been turned over to Jack. Jack started the country in 1910 by attacking with a knife a banker, Jero S. Little, in the Cudahy home in Kansas City. Mrs. Cudahy secured a divorce, but the couple reunited last year.

THE OPEN DOOR AT PANAMA

Although the wonders of the Panama Canal have been frequently described, the mere measurements fail to give one a very definite picture. From an engineering standpoint their most remarkable feature is probably the great locks. Here the largest steamers in the world may be raised and lowered like so many canal boats. The remarkable photograph of one of the Gatun locks, taken from the floor of the Canal, which is reproduced herewith, gives one an entirely new idea of the great water way. The locks at this point are 100 feet in width and 2,000 feet in length. The difference in the water level is maintained by great steel gates thrown across the locks. In spite of their enormous size, these gates may be swung open or shut, as smoothly, as an ordinary door. The photograph was taken by one of the tourists on the S. S. Moltke of the Hamburg-American Line, from the observation train, which runs along the track at the bottom of the locks. The picture shows the gates practically complete, only the finishing touches being required before the water may be let into the Canal.

CLINTON

Clinton, April 21.—Mrs. L. L. Olds of Madison, formerly of this place, went to New York last week to visit her daughter, Helen Peterson.

Dr. Eaton of Shopiere was in town Thursday on business.

Several from here are planning on attending "The Bohemian Girl," at the Myers theatre, Janesville, April 25.

The high school baseball team went to Walworth last Friday afternoon and were defeated by the score of 3 to 5, and Saturday afternoon played the Delavan deaf and dumb institute team and defeated them by the score of 12 to 10.

The high school declamatory contest will be held next Friday evening at the Baptist church. A very enjoyable program has been planned.

The Cemetery Board of Control, at their last meeting passed a resolution levying the usual assessment of $1.00 per annum on each lot for upkeep expenses and declaring that no lots will be cared for hereafter, on which the assessment is in arrears. There are over four hundred lot owners but only a little over one hundred pay their annual tax and the income is not sufficient to pay running expenses.

Miss Emma Chort of Delavan was here Saturday afternoon to visit her parents.

Miss Edna Woolston of Racine spent Saturday and Sunday here visiting her parents.

Converse Dickerman, who is working in Beloit, spent Sunday here with his mother.

FAVORS OIL INSPECTION FOR THE RETAILERS ONLY
Pennings Bill Offers a Relief to Automobile Dealers Who Do Not Sell Oil They Receive.

Madison, Wis., April 21.—The Pennings bill, eliminating the requirement of inspection of oils when in the possession of the ultimate consumer was discussed before the assembly committee on public welfare by Chester D. Barnes of Kenosha. He said that automobile manufacturers who do not sell the oil, which they receive in tanks but use it about their own plants are not under the same class of buyers as those who purchase it for retailing purposes. Moreover, the law's application to the ultimate consumer, he declared, was unconstitutional. A suit is now pending to establish this contention.

Mr. Barnes said that 95 percent of the gasoline sold in this country is used for power purposes, the advent of the automobile industry being responsible for this change. Before that time it was regarded as a waste by-product which was turned into the rivers for disposal. Its sole present value, he maintained, lies in its explosive character in connection with its use in automobiles. So long as the element of danger is eliminated, he said, there is no reason for further inspection. Mr. Barnes admitted, however, that the proposed law would greatly reduce the oil inspection fees of the state department, but said the department could be sustained very well without them.

Another hearing will be held Tuesday when the state oil inspector will be present.

Live Longer Nowadays.
Life insurance folk say, says the New York Telegraph, that the expectation of life nowadays is well above seventy, and that persons nowadays are supposed to live at least until they are eighty, and if they reach that age should last until they are ninety, and so on, and about five out of every two hundred persons should walk the earth for a century.

ONE MORE SMITH GOES TO CONGRESS

Frank O. Smith.

The latest Smith to break into congress is Representative Frank O. Smith of the Fifth Maryland district. He is a farmer and a Democrat. He succeeded a Republican and is the first Democrat to be elected from the southern part of his state in the last twenty years. Two years ago he ran for the office of state senator, but was defeated. His farm is one of the show places in his section. He is about fifty years old.

There is no reason for further inspection, Mr. Barnes admitted, however, that the proposed law would greatly reduce the oil inspection fees of the state department, but said the department could be sustained very well without them.

Another hearing will be held Tuesday when the state oil inspector will be present.

Life insurance folk say, says the New York Telegraph, that the expectation of life nowadays is well above seventy, and that persons nowadays are supposed to live at least until they are eighty, and if they reach that age should last until they are ninety, and so on, and about five out of every two hundred persons should walk the earth for a century.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PAYSON TERNHAGEN

BLACK HAWK.

His Indian name—or the best known of his several Indian names—was Maka-Taim-Sheki-Kiak. It means "Big bird that is black" and is usually translated "Black Hawk." He had the figure of a Greek god and a head and face closely resembling Sir Walter Scott's.

Black Hawk began life in the Sac and Fox Nation, near Rock River, in Illinois. By the time he was fifteen he had gone through the torture and weird ceremonies entitling him to call himself a "brave." Next year, in 1783, the sixteen-year-old lad went at the head of a small war party against 100 Osage Indians, and won his first victory. At nineteen he led 200 Sacs and Foxes against 200 Osages. Fully 100 of the Osages were slain, and Black Hawk with his own hand killed six of his foes.

A Refusal to Yield.
In the War of 1812 Black Hawk was persuaded by Tecumseh to join the British ranks as a brigadier general. With 500 native followers he did valiant deeds against the United States, and incidentally learned much about civilized warfare. Keokuk, head chief of the tribe, was—or pretended to be—a friend of the government. Black Hawk hated Keokuk and started a strong opposition faction, with himself at its head. A treaty had been made whereby for a yearly payment of $1,000 the Sacs and Foxes were to turn over to the white men a 700-mile tract of land east of the Mississippi river. Accordingly Keokuk and his followers moved west across the Mississippi. Black Hawk refused to go. He said the officials had made the chiefs drunk and tricked them into the unfair treaty, and he refused to be bound by any such agreement. Then he started a confederacy of neighboring tribes for the purpose of destroying all settlers who should try to seize the Indian lands.

Bloodshed followed. Governor Reynolds of Illinois called out the militia. A brief campaign was followed by a new treaty, which Black Hawk signed. In accordance with this agreement he moved his braves and squaws across the Mississippi. But he only stayed there long enough to perfect his plan for a great Indian confederacy against the white men. Then, assured that many tribes would flock to his standard, he retreated to the river's east bank. But only a small proportion of the warriors from other tribes whose aid he had relied on actually joined him. So he found himself on the brink of war with the government and with perhaps less than half the following he needed for such a conflict. He sent a flag of truce to a government force that was pursuing him. The Indian who bore the flag was shot down by the soldiers. Whereat Black Hawk in fury attacked the troops (270 men under Major Isalah Stillman) on May 14, 1832, and with only seventy Indians put them to utter rout. The war was on!

Black Hawk swept like a wildfire through the nearby settlements, leaving flame and death in his wake. The government saw it had a real frontier war on its hands and sent broadcast a call for troops. (In the conflict that followed there were four officers who were later to win national fame. They were: Abraham Lincoln, Winfield Scott, Zachary Taylor and Jefferson Davis.) Black Hawk attacked Apple River Fort on June 24, 1832, and next day defeated a strong detachment of United States troops. But the odds against him were too severe. As the white soldiers massed in greater numbers Black Hawk and his gallant braves were forced gradually backward, fighting furiously for every inch of the way until they reached the mouth of the Bad Ax river. A United States steamship lay off the shore.

In suit to a Fallen Foe.
Black Hawk sent forward a flag of truce. The steamship disregarded the white flag and buried shells into the Indian camp, where squaws and papooses were huddled. The pursuing troops finished the rout. The Indian army was cut to pieces. Black Hawk escaped, but was soon captured. He was held prisoner for months at Fortress Monroe, then taken on a tour of New York and other big cities that he might see the full power of the white man. He was at last permitted to return home, only to find that the government had made Keokuk chief of his old-time warriors. Beaten, deposed from rank and power, homeless, hopeless, the old chief did not long survive his disgrace. He died Oct. 3, 1838, near Des Moines, Ia.

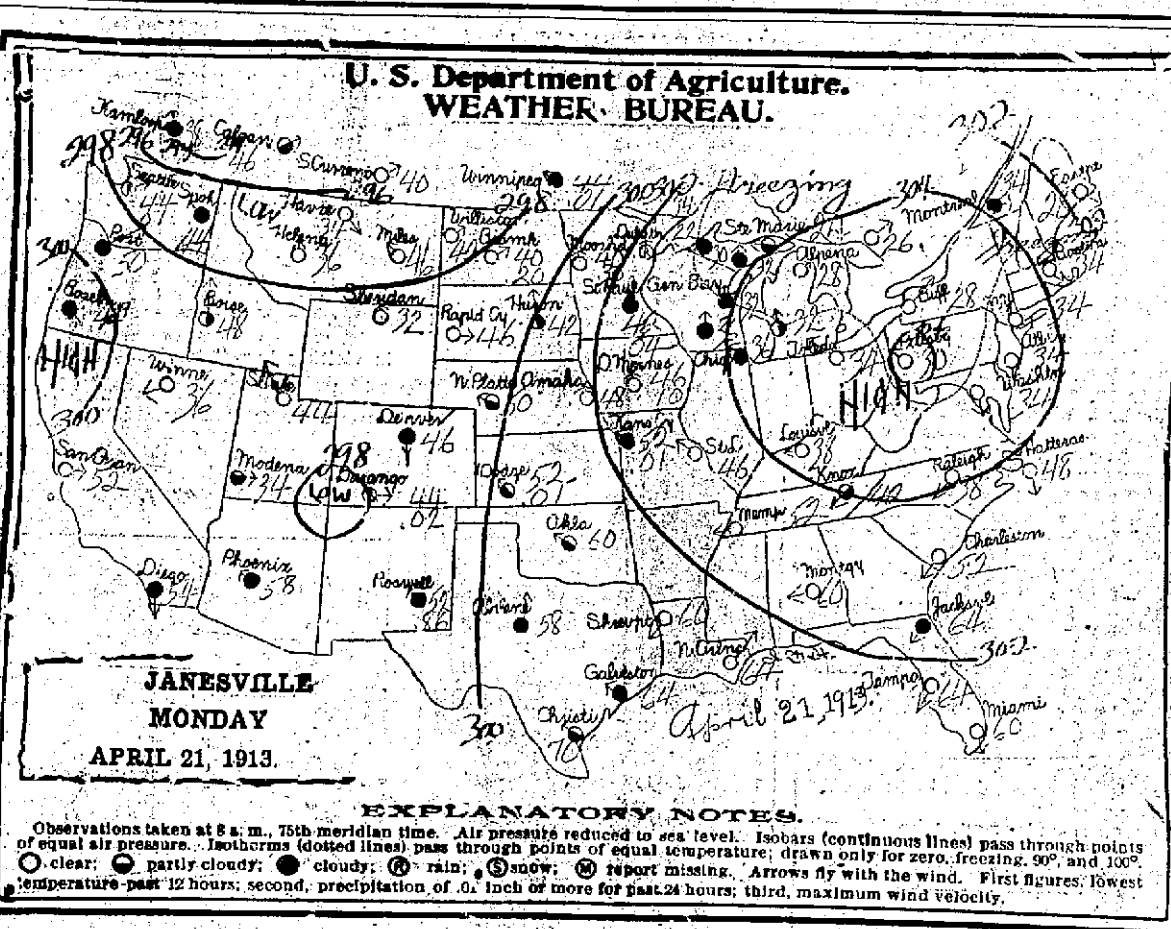

When Black Hawk was captured in 1832 he turned to his fellow prisoners and cried: "Farewell, my nation! Black Hawk tried to save you and avenge your wrongs. He shed the blood of many of the whites. Now he is a prisoner and his plans are overthrown. He can do no more. He nears his end. His sun is setting and will rise never again. Farewell to Black Hawk!"

Norman B. Wood thus powerfully sums up the Black Hawk war: "It was caused by the white man's avarice and determination to swindle the Indian. . . . It began by the deliberate murder of the bearer of a white flag of truce and it ended in an indiscriminate massacre of men, women and helpless children while the chief and warriors were suing for peace and trying to surrender."

INVESTIGATE POLICE GRAFT CHARGES IN SAN FRANCISCO

(By Associated Press.)
San Francisco, April 21.—Police officials and the grand jury today are investigating charges that two detectives and two sergeants received a fifteen per cent "rake-off" from a gang of bunco men who secured $300,000 in one year from San Francisco's foreign population. The charges are made by Forrest De Martini, leader of the bunco ring, who is in the county jail awaiting sentence. Two superior judges have been informed by De Martini that he is ready a public statement regarding the alleged police graft.

First Umbrella in America.
The first umbrella seen in America was the property of a Baltimore man, who made his first appearance in public carrying the article March 5, 1770. The contrivance excited much comment and ridicule, and for years the use of the umbrella as a protection against rain was considered effeminate.

The Evening Chit-Chat

MAJORITY RULE IN CONVERSATION.

A BRAHAM LINCOLN once said that under certain conditions, namely, "If by the mere force of numbers a majority should deprive a minority of any clearly written constitutional right, majority rule might work great wrong."

I am sure our great president would have said the same and more about majority rule in conversation.

What is majority rule in conversation? Why, don't you know? That's queer, for you have probably been the victim or the perpetrator of it many times. Since illustrations are usually the best definitions, I'll define it that way.

A group of five people had chanced to come together at the home of one of their number and are holding an evening conversation. Of the five, four attended a certain college, and one did not. The talk turns to college reminiscences and the four become animated and enthusiastic. Such expressions as "Do you remember the time we—" "My dear, HAVE you heard about Professor X?" "He—" "I'll never forget that night we—" fly thick as hailstones about the head of the poor unfortunate who did not attend that particular alma mater. Occasionally someone addresses a remark to him, but for the most part he is ignored and sits with a fixed smile of simulated interest on his face like a wallflower at a dance, until the conversation comes back to interests in which he has a share.

That's what I mean by majority rule in conversation. Selfishness and discourtesy, even when perpetrated with perfectly good company, are never excusable. When by the mere force of numbers a majority completely deprives a minority of any share in the conversation, the majority are acting in a rude, or at least a very thoughtless way, and should be ashamed of themselves. No good hostess will permit majority rule in conversation. When she sees that a part of the company is being left out she will quickly give the conversation some twist which will take them in.

There are almost always plenty of subjects which will interest all the gathering. Even if you do not have the responsibility of interest all the gathering, the majority is exceeding its rights in conversation, you will prove yourself truly courteous by trying to drop the exclusive subject and introduce one of broader interest.

Quick Way to Sew Carpet Rags. Sew all seams of skirt, sleeves or whatever seam it may be, down by machine, then cut round and round. If you don't sew down the seams first it will rip where the seams are. Out of my whole skirt after I had cut it, I only had three strings to sew together, and the whole skirt was in carpet rags ready to wrap. Men's shirts are nice, as the seams are sewed double already; just cut round and round and have the whole skirt in one string. I think cut carpet strings are much nicer than if they are torn; there won't be any raveling.

Spring Food. Oranges and pineapples make a most delicious salad. Tomatoes and celery, with a salad dressing, are pleasing. Asparagus will purge the blood; it also acts beneficially upon the kidneys. Spinach and dandelion also act beneficially on the kidneys. Lettuce and cucumbers cool the blood.

Pineapples contain pepsin and help digestion. Celery tones the nerves and produces healthy sleep.

Onions, leek and garlic stimulate the blood circulation, promote digestion and increase the flow of saliva and the gastric juices.

Peas and beans are muscle forming. Tomatoes act beneficially upon the liver and are helpful after the heavy food of winter.

Onions are good for many ills and onion salad is a fine spring medicine. It quiets the nerves and induces sleep.

I heard one doctor say, in commenting upon the benefits derived from the eating of onions, that with a salad made of two-thirds onion and one-third dandelion we would all have a complexion like roses and cream and feel as gay and chipper as skylarks.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

The House of Limitations

I ALWAYS think of Cousin Elizabeth's house as the House of Limitations," said Dolly to her sister. "Did it ever strike you that way?" "I don't know that it ever did," said Jane. "I know it is a place I hate to go to, and I seldom do, if I can help it." "You have hit the nail right on the head," said Dolly. "Nobody that I know does care to go there very much. But did you ever stop to think why?"

"No, I never did," admitted Jane.

"It is just because Cousin Elizabeth has hedged herself and her home and her family all about with 'Don'ts.' As I put it before, I look upon that house as the House of Limitations."

"She doesn't believe in dusting and sweeping and cleaning," went on Dolly. "So she won't have pictures or a bit of pottery or rugs or anything beautiful about the house. She serves her meals on just as few dishes as possible, in order to make as little work as she can. To be sure, one can go to the other extreme in these matters, and have too many pictures, and too much bric-a-brac, and too elaborate meals. But it is just as bad to cut all these out, as to over-do them."

"Then she thinks half the food we eat is unhealthful, and so she omits from the family menu nearly everything that is delicious. Her table is absolutely monotonous and unpalatable. She thinks the clothes we wear are ridiculous, and so she goes in for the biggest and flattest of common-sense shoes, and reform dresses and queer hats. There is some truth, of course, in the objections she takes to present-day fashions. But she goes too far."

"Her children all have a sort of dwarfed, stunted, limited look. They lack beauty and charm. They seem half fed. Whenever I see them, I always feel that some sort of lid has been clapped down on them, and has crushed out about half of their life. Her husband too gives you the same impression. He's sort of quiet and depressed and anaemic. She and her ideas dominate the house."

"And I don't see that she has gained anything by following laws which she thinks are healthful and sensible. For she is sick most of the time, her home is unattractive, she never goes anywhere, and she never looks pretty. It always seems to me as if she had got into a blind alley of life from which there is no outlet, except by marching back the way she came. And when you think of all the beauty and pleasure there is in life, when you don't limit it in this way, isn't it a pity she should surround herself and her family with this ugly high wall of 'Don'ts' that shuts out all the sunlight and joy?"

"It really is just as you say," said Jane. "Though I had never analyzed it before. She has placed a big 'Don't' across nearly every pleasant avenue of life, until she has shut herself into a little cheerless area. It is no wonder she is sick and gloomy and morbid. With all the great beautiful world about us for a dwelling place, it certainly is a pity to shut one's self up in a House of Limitations."

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I have been going with a fellow for a year. Recently he said that I belonged to him and will not give me up. He used to say, "Never tell a girl that you love her," but now he says that he loves me. Do you think that he does? (2)—I am almost nineteen but I have always done as my mother wished. My friend thinks that I should obey her but he thinks that I am old enough to marry if I want to. Am I? He used to say that he didn't care if I went with other fellows, but he cared who I went with, but now he doesn't want me to go with anyone else. Please give me your advice. BETTIE.

Better marry him my dear. If he loves you all right. Of course I hope you do everything to get your parents' consent and make it a happy wedding.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—A fellow that I have been going with for some time acted in an ungentlemanly way but he was sorry for it afterward. He said he couldn't help it. What would you do? He said that he liked me better than any other girl that he ever went with. Do you think he does? He begged me not to quit going with him on account of his actions. Advise me. K.

Give him another chance to make good, but do not forgive a second offense. He can control himself if he really cares for you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of eighteen. Am very quiet and modest. I have never dared for dancing, skating and such pleasures. In fact I don't approve of it. I have always had plenty of boy friends, but for the past year I have only gone with one young man, whom I deeply love. He is twenty. We are engaged to be married in another year. He wants to hug and kiss me. I have never approved of a girl and boy hugging and kissing before marriage. I have always been very strict with my boy friends. Please advise me what to do. (2) What is good for making the hair grow. BLONDIE.

(1) Boy friends, and the man you're engaged to marry, are very different. I do not believe in overdoing the hugging and kissing between engaged people, but when you told the young man you were willing to marry him, he supposed you loved him, and if you love him you will want him to hug and kiss you. Now is the time to find out whether you can endure his caresses. If you can't endure them, better break the engagement. He is not the man for you. (2) Rub yellow vaseline into the scalp, after a shampoo. Dip your hair brush into kerosene once a week and give your hair a thorough brushing with it. Keep your brush and combs clean and brush the hair well once a day.

PERSONAL ELEMENT IS A VITAL FACTOR

RT. REV. BISHOP W. W. WEBB GIVES CONFIRMATION SERMON AT CHRIST CHURCH.

CHRIST AS SHEPHERD

Personal Relationship Between Soul and Almighty is the Essence of Christianity.

"Religion is the bond which binds the soul back to God; Christianity is the personal relationship between the soul and the Almighty," said the Rt. Rev. Bishop W. W. Webb of Milwaukee in his confirmation sermon at Christ church Sunday morning.

The text for the address was taken from the tenth chapter of St. John's gospel, the parable of the good shepherd. Here, said the speaker, as well as in numerous other places throughout the bible, we find the comparison of Christ to the shepherd and of His followers to the sheep. The shepherds of Syria, it was pointed out, are far different from the shepherds of our own country. There the shepherd truly knows his own sheep; he is acquainted with the peculiarities of each one; he has tended them with utmost care since they were suckling lambs.

And in just the same way that the Syrian shepherd knows every sheep in his flock, calling each one by name as the American farmer names his horses, so Christ knows us all. There is the same closeness of comradeship, the same tender care, and the solicitation for our spiritual well being.

"Christ doesn't deal with us in a crowd," said the bishop. "He knows each one by name. His mind is infinite, not finite. Each soul stands out by itself and each soul must be responsible."

Bishop Webb called attention to the fact that the first question in the catechism is "What is your name." Each person, each soul has its own particular individuality in which God is concerned. It is the most vital and fundamental doctrine of the Christian faith.

"But, possessing, as every person does, this individuality and close personal relationship with God, carries with it a great responsibility. We have to do with our own salvation and it is a dangerous thing to go to church and take part in the services without knowing what that thing means. If it means anything it is not to be trifled with. We hear much talk today about converting the masses and the classes, but the soul, the particular person, is the one we have to deal with. I don't care what great state position one may hold or how great

"Another respect in which Christ is like the shepherd is that he never drives us. He always leads and we follow. We wouldn't be free if that was not the case."

In closing the bishop indicated briefly the temptations which beset the striving Christian in the world. No matter in what walk of life there were passions and temptations which must be overcome and conquered. They may be either the result of our own blood tendencies or heredity of our environments, but they must be met and overcome.

"The purpose of baptism, of confirmation of the Holy Eucharist, is to give us the strength which we so sorely need amid the world's trials."

TWO MORE DAYS FOR THE CYCLOPEDIAS

An Extension of the Book Offer. Heavy Demand Last Week.

No better demonstration could be offered in evidence of the large circulation of The Gazette than the big response to the "book bargain" announcement made last week. The "bargain" consisted of a complete set of Everybody's Cyclopedia, which usually sells at $12, at the ridiculously low price of $2.35 for the five volumes. The only "if" in the proposition was a coupon clipped from The Gazette and every mail since has brought coupons.

Such a demand was never known before and The Gazette feels in duty bound to give their readers another opportunity. Hence, announcement is made elsewhere in today's issue that another two days will be given to the distribution of this wonderful set of reference books. Next Friday and Saturday are the days and the price will remain the same, $2.35 for the five volumes complete.

Everybody's Cyclopedia is a reference work that should be in every home. Every school boy and girl should have access to it and every office should have a set on a convenient shelf. The five volumes are filled with information needed by all every day. It treats 35,000 subjects, all carefully arranged for quick reference.

A short time ago a syndicate of leading newspapers distributed something like two million dictionaries at 35 cents each. All who got them were loud in their praises, but here is a still greater bargain for readers of The Gazette. The sets are too bulky to be sent by mail, but out-of-town readers can have them, for the $2.35 set to be sent by express, shipping charges to be paid by the receiver.

Look for the coupon printed elsewhere in today's paper and clip it without delay. You'll never have another opportunity like this.

Your Friends.

Treat your friends for what you know them to be. Regard no surfaces. Consider not what they did, but what they intended.—Thoreau.

TO HANG TWO MURDERERS IN NEW MEXICO PRISON

Santa Fe, N. M., April 21.—Two murderers who have been confined for safe keeping in the state prison here are to be taken this week to Socorro, where they are to be executed Friday. The condemned men are Francisco Granado, who killed a clerk in an attempted store holdup last winter, and Irwin Frazier, alias John Gates, who killed a deputy sheriff in a fight with a posse. Frazier is regarded as one of the most desperate criminals who has operated in this section of the country in years. He is said to be one of seven men who precipitated the first battle of Juarez when Madero took the border town. He was one of a party engaged in a jail delivery at Deming a year ago.

SWISS MUST SERVE IN GERMANY'S ARMY OR LEAVE COUNTRY

Eight Thousand Young Men in Alsace-Lorraine are Given Fifteen Days to Make Decision.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Geneva, Switzerland, April 21.—The German military administration has notified 8,000 young Swiss living in Alsace-Lorraine that they must either serve in the German army or leave the country.

Dating from the time the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine became German, Switzerland and Germany have had an agreement whereby the Swiss residing in Alsace-Lorraine were exempt from service in either the German or the Swiss army. This arrangement has now expired, and the Swiss in these provinces must either become German subjects or Swiss citizens. They have fifteen days in which to decide. The German administration will no doubt apply the new regulations with consideration, but nevertheless thousands of Swiss families over the border are considerably disturbed at the necessity of making such an important decision at such short notice.

Blast "Devil's Graveyard"

The "Devil's Graveyard," a cemetery on top of a rocky hill overlooking Sion, canton of Valais, where for centuries were buried sorcerers and sorceresses, is being blasted away to make place for public improvements. From the tenth century to the early seventeenth, those supposed to be in traffic with the Evil One were tortured, executed and buried there. The excavators have found bones estimated to be those of many hundreds of persons.

Make Notable Find.

Professor Felsard, the government archeologist, in excavating at Blasens, near Fribourg, has found imbedded in quartz the bones of a woman, together with some jewelry of the Gallic-Helvetian period, B. C. 150 to 200. The ornaments were a bronze necklace set with pieces of blue glass.

Prince Louis Wins Suit.

Prince Louis Ferdinand of Bavaria has won a suit, through the Bavarian minister at Bern, to compel a certain publisher to destroy the manuscript of a scandalous book concerning the life of the prince. It came out in evidence that the prince had refused to pay $40,000 to the author of the book for its suppression. The author is a woman and lives in Munich.

Fear For Safety of Town.

The downward sliding movement of the top of Mont Caroline, which threatened to overwhelm the village of Fleurier a couple of weeks ago, has stopped, but the people in the valley live in hourly anxiety that the millions of tons of rock and earth above them will fall upon the town.

The authorities have ordered the inhabitants of the danger zone to move temporarily. Watchers have been posted on neighboring peaks connected by improvised telephone lines, with sentinels below to signal at any moment, day or night, the recurrence of the movement. Deep trenches are being dug at the base of the mountain in the hope of arresting the landslide if it comes, or at least check it for a few moments.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE VACUUM CLEANER.

By Howard L. Rann.

The vacuum cleaner is an agile device which has sounded the death knell of the corn broom, the carpet sweeper and the reversible backache. It is a greater boon to the housewife than the prepared soup, and can be used oftener without causing the family to remonstrate in an indignant tone.

For several hundred years women who wanted to remove the rug and the carpet and the Wilton velvet rug have had to lean against it heavily with a broom and take up several inches of nap along with the germs. This treatment caused the spine of the sweeper to assume a neat half moon shape, and release a terrifying stench. After a woman has entertained several of these stitches in succession, she can see a microbe crawling over the floor without moving out of her chair.

The vacuum cleaner has done away with all this. Nowadays all a woman has to do is to press the cold, unsympathetic nose of the cleaner against a carpet and run around in circles. If there is anything in the carpet which ought to come out, the cleaner will extract it and tuck it away in its lip pocket.

Some cleaners are more thorough than others, and will pass right through a 12x12 rug square and draw the tacks out of a hardwood floor. This makes it unnecessary to drag the rugs out on the front lawn and beat them to death with a wire flail.

The vacuum cleaner will clean everything in the house but the dinner dishes, which are still the source of considerable chum. Every vacuum cleaner is fitted with a prehensile nozzle, which can be poked under beds behind pictures and through lace curtains without disturbing anything but the adjacent bacilli. This can be done just as easily in a flimsy evening gown as in the sordid attire of the $2.48 kimono.

That offensive taste and odor in some beers is easily avoided. Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light.

"While beer quickly deteriorates when it is exposed to direct sunlight, such deterioration, although greatly retarded, will eventually take place in diffused light. Beer exposed to the rays of the sun will very quickly acquire the so-called 'skunk taste'."

Read Story of Her Death.

When a blacksmith, named Lyon, declared that the body of a drowned woman, recently exhumed at Creil, France, was that of his wife, Juliette, who deserted him two years ago, a death certificate was made out in her name. Juliette, however, was very much alive, and after reading the story in the Petit Parisien, she wrote an indignant letter to the authorities, demanding to be "officially resuscitated."

POST OF AMERICAN AMBASSADOR IS NOT A PROFITABLE ONE

Rent of Apartment Costs from Third to Two-Thirds of His Salary.—
Women's Battalions Proposed.

Paris, April 21.—The American at home who reacts of the difficulty of finding suitable ambassadors because the salaries are so small may wonder why $17,500 a year isn't enough for any American family to live on, whether at home or abroad. That sum does seem sufficient, and more, to the every-day onlooker until he sees what an ambassador and his are expected and really compelled to do.

The first serious thing is the house. When the ambassador reaches his field of work he begins to realize that his country will be judged by what he does; that he is no longer an individual American who may act as he pleases about most things, but that his country will be misjudged unless he conforms, to some extent at least, to the ways in which other ambassadors do things. Therefore he determines that he should choose a house and not live in a flat. If he cannot afford a house in the center of the exclusive section, it must at least be on the fringe of this quarter. The house which has been occupied in Paris by several American ambassadors is neither large nor particularly imposing, yet the rent is $12,000 a year unfurnished. The residence is about one-quarter as large as the embassy, the Russian or the German embassies. If the ambassador should decide to take over the house of his predecessors, two-thirds of his salary will go in rent. He may, by searching, find a smaller house, or he may engage a furnished apartment. The latter would save him an expense of about $5,000, the cost of moving his household goods from the United States to Paris and back again. But even a furnished apartment on the borders of the desirable districts would cost him a third of his salary.

The ambassador and his wife, upon their arrival and continuously thereafter, are invited to other embassies, to the entertainments of the high officials of government, and to the homes of the important people of the capital. Everywhere the ambassador and the members of his family find exquisite dinners, flowers, numerous servants, beautiful costumes. He does not choose his associates. They are made for him by his position as ambassador of the United States.

He is not invited on personal grounds, but because he is the ambassador of one of the great governments. If he were not invited, the government of the United States might have just cause of complaint. If he did not go freely among his colleagues and people of equal rank it might have further cause of complaint, and his work as ambassador would be the more difficult. The social life of an ambassador is so intertwined with his official position that to fill the one serviceably he must give time, thought and money to the other. Being entertained, he must entertain. Proper feeling compels him to do so, and strive as he may he is drawn into expenses on which he never reckoned. He is humiliated, in his own opinion, if he endeavors to avoid them.

One American ambassador to a continental state, on a salary of $17,500 a year, once said to a friend: "I read in the American papers that I am saving money out of my salary. You know I live at a hotel; that I have a hired carriage; that I do everything about as simple as I can. Well, I have just gone over my books, and I find that during the past twelve months I have spent $27,000."

Diviners' Gifts Probed.
The Congress of Experimental Psychology devoted a field day recently to investigating the claims of the manipulators of the divining-rod. The results obtained were interesting, but the psychologists were obliged to admit that they could offer no satisfactory explanation of the strange gifts of the operators.

Some twenty "rhabdomancers" accepted the invitation of the congress and met Professor Vire, of the Natural History Museum, who was to direct the experiments, at the Bois de Vincennes. Professor Vire had selected the ground for the experiments, and a special map had been prepared by the prefecture of the Seine. First of all, M. Vire called upon all the operators who thought themselves able to locate underground caves, to step forward. Four men responded, Messrs. Pelatrat, Lebrun, Combrages and Prost. They were led to distant points of the terrain, and told to begin.

Armed with rods of cane, whalebone or metal the four men advanced, slowly and deliberately, raising their instruments, which had been prepared by the action of the faculty of divination. Their statements were carefully checked by the map. First M. Pelatrat announced a dry cavity at a depth of 18 yards; a glance at the map showed this to be absolutely correct. Next M. Prost announced the presence of a subterranean quarry, describing the outline and giving various details, all of which were found to be more or less correct. The results obtained by the other two were no less extraordinary. They found dry caves at will. Mr. Pelatrat even discovered a seam of coal at a depth which he estimated at 140 yards. The official map did not mention this coal, but as all the other statements made by the "rhabdomancers" have been found to be perfectly correct, the scientists saw no reason to doubt the truth of this statement.

Women's Battalions Proposed.
Madame Jane Dieulafoy, author, explorer, chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and possessor of the unique privilege accorded by the French government of wearing male apparel, has conceived the idea of forming battalions of women to aid in the work of reorganizing the French army. The women are not to fight, so Madame Dieulafoy's scheme offers no opening to the humorist. On the contrary, it is regarded as eminently practical. It is based on her own personal observations, for Madame Dieulafoy fought in the Franco-Prussian war, disguised in a uniform, by her husband's side, and knows what she is talking about. Briefly, she proposes that volunteer corps of women should be formed to work in the commissary department, the clothing department and other non-combatant sections, releasing the men now employed by these services and sending them to swell the numbers of fighters.

There are many women, widows, etc., points out Mme. Dieulafoy, whose life is practically over at forty; many young and old maid who have "no object in life." All these would welcome the idea of aiding in the useful work of defending their native land. The minister of war, to whom the scheme was submitted, was most encouraging, and a number of women have already signified their willingness to co-operate. Mme. Dieulafoy is now engaged in working out the main lines of her plan, taking the Red Cross Association as a model organization. She will ask that designated women be instructed by commissary officers, and that women be given the opportunity of actual service in this department.

PRINCIPAL BELOIT HIGH SCHOOL DIES

John C. Pierson, One of State's Prominent Educators, Dies on Sunday of Pneumonia.

Beloit, April 21.—John C. Pierson, forty-two years old, one of the best known educators of the state, a graduate of the University of Northwestern and principal of the Beloit high school for eight years, died at his home here on Sunday of pneumonia.

Mr. Pierson was one of the most prominent men in Beloit and Rock County. He was born at Winneka, Ill., where he was graduated from high school. Then he attended Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill., and came to Beloit as a teacher in the local high school. He then went to Menomonie, Wis., for three years and was recalled to Beloit as principal of the high school. Since his coming he has secured a new high school building and improved the equipment until the school is one of the best in the state. During the summers he made geographical studies of the United States.

Mr. Pierson is survived by a wife and three small children.

GREED FOR WEALTH CAUSE OF DOWNFALL

Phil Allen, Mineral Point Banker Now in Federal Prison, Brought to Madison to Testify.

Madison, Wis., April 21.—Phil Allen, former vice president of the First National bank of Mineral Point, Wis., now serving a ten year term at Federal reformatory prison for wrecking the bank, is in Madison to give testimony in a suit brought against his directors, where he is occupied as one of the prison librarians. He is accompanied to Madison by a guard, E. G. Smith, who allows him the same degree of liberty under the honor system as was extended to him at the prison.

In the federal building here Saturday night, Allen consented to write the story of his life in prison. While the venerable banker was preparing the article, his guard announced that he was going out for a walk. "Very well," said Allen, "you have the freedom of the city."

Allen says the "mad race for wealth" led to his downfall. "There are men like myself there," he says, "who are not naturally criminal, and are sincerely repentant, for no matter how bad my acts were, I lacked the intention of committing wrong, and people who know me know that I am not a criminal. I was mad for wealth—that was it."

Allen was an earnest church worker in his home town for years, and when he arrived at the prison he engaged in religious work among the convicts. Some of them call him "Dad," others "the preacher," and others "uncle." For thirty years at Mineral Point Allen was superintendent of the same Sunday school.

GIVE HIM A CHANCE

THE LOCAL RETAILER HAS HIS MONEY INVESTED IN YOUR TOWN. GIVE HIM A CHANCE TO FIGURE ON YOUR TRADE.

(Copyrighted 1912, by Edgar Taylor Wheelock.)

There is not a local retailer in all this land who does not want to do business. If he did not he would not be in business. There is not a local retailer in the land who can not successfully compete with the mail order and catalogue retailers. He may not know it, but it is a fact, nevertheless.

Not a Charitable Institution.

The catalogue retailers are not in business for their health. When they sell goods they make a profit, except in cases where they advertise "leaders" as baits to pull trade. They invariably practice the methods adopted by proprietors of 5 and 10-cent stores.

Go to any of these stores in the cities and you will find on the 10-cent counters articles that cost more than that price at wholesale. Some of these articles commonly retail at from 26 to 50 cents. On the same counter will be found articles that cost from 2 to 4 cents. The profit on the latter more than makes up the loss on the former. That is the catalogue retailer's system.

Investigate for Yourself.

Take your catalogue to your local retailer and ask him to make an investigation concerning the goods you want to buy. If he is an up-to-date retailer, he will know what the goods advertised in the catalogue really are, and, if you insist on buying that kind of goods, he will be able to get them for you.

A firm of hardware dealers in a Wisconsin town keeps on its counter the catalogue of the largest Chicago mail order retailer upon which is pasted a notice that they will furnish any article in their line advertised in the catalogue as cheaply as the buyer can produce the article from Chicago. And they keep their word.

They know that the cheap stoves sold by the catalogue house are light weight stoves; that the cheap iron beds, shown in the pictures as massive frames with substantial corner posts and cross bars, are light frail castings commonly known as "seconds," that no reputable furniture dealer would keep in stock because he could not sell them to people who were given an opportunity to look at them.

These are facts. It is only on rare occasions that the patron of a catalogue house can be assured of getting the worth of his money.

Can Hold Him Accountable.

On the other hand, the local retailer, if he understands his business, buys his stock from manufacturers and dealers who have reputations at stake and who supply goods of quality to their distributing agents—the retail dealers.

This class of manufacturers and wholesalers will not sell their goods to the catalogue retailers at any price. An instance is known where one of the catalogue houses secured several stores of standard make in an underhanded way and advertised them as "leaders" at cut prices. The manufacturers immediately had orders sent in by persons employed by them and bought up at retail every one of their stores offered.

They did this to preserve their reputation. They did not propose to have their stoves, which were standard, advertised by the side of inferior articles of light weight and cheap construction.

How About Catalogue Paints?

Take also the matter of paints. The catalogue retailers advertise their paints as the best on the market and offer to furnish an impossible guaranty. But they do not ship their paints into states that require a printed copy of the analysis of the contents to be pasted on each package. Why?

Because their paints are not what they are represented to be. Most local merchants know these facts and they can explain them to their customers if given an opportunity. They can, if they understand their business, explain the difference between the quality of their goods and those sold by the catalogue retailers. They should be given a chance to do so.

If they can not meet this demand upon them as business men they are not up-to-date merchants and they should be educated. If the consumers are awake and alive to their own interests they can begin this work of education by demanding the information asked for and the efficient service required. At least, it is worth a trial.

If a classified ad will search out buyers will they not also search for sellers equally?

If you have a want that seems hard to find where is there a better place to search than in the 6000 homes that The Gazette Classified page reaches daily?

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Bimkins almost had a swell job that time.

THE PURCHASE PRICE; OR, THE CAUSE OF COMPROMISE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1910, by Emerson Hough.

Rage filled him suddenly. "At any rate, this is what I have and all I have," he said. "Like it, woman, or hate it! Here you are, and here you stay until—until I die or until God returns. You are the only woman in it for me when you step into that house there. You are its mistress. I rule here. But what you must shall be yours at any time you want it. You can think of nothing in the world that shall not be brought to you when you ask for it. My servants are yours. Choose from them as many as you like."

"Slaves for your slave? You are full of kindness indeed! But I shall never be what you delicately call the mistress of Tailwoods."

"I'm going to have you. It's yours or nothing for me, and I'm going to have you. Choose your own title here, then, madam. This is your home or your prison, as you like."

For a moment Josephine paused, looking around her at the surrounding hills. He seemed to catch her thought and smiled at her.

"Twenty miles to the nearest house that way, madam. None at all that other way. Every path known and guarded by my people. No paths at all in these hills out yonder. Wild animals in them. Little food in them for man or woman not used to living wild. You would be helpless in one day if you tried to get out. We'd find you before you'd gone five miles. Don't attempt any foolishness about trying to escape from here. You're mine, I say. I shall not let you go."

Yet in spite of his savagery, his face softened in the next moment. "If it could only be in the right way! Look at me, look at you. You're so very beautiful, I'm so strong. There is only one right way about it. Oh, woman! But come! I hate myself as much as you hate me, but it's your fault—your fault that you are as you are—that you set me mad. Let's try to forget it for tonight at least. You're tired, worn out. I'm almost tired myself with all this war between us."

She was silent as they slowly advanced, silent as a prisoner facing prison doors, but he still went on, arguing:

"Think of what you could do here, how happy we could be here. Think of what we could do together. There isn't anything I wouldn't try to do. Why, I could do anything, and I'd bring every thing I got, everything, back to you."

and set it down at your feet and say, 'I brought you this. What would I care for it alone? What does it mean to me? What glory or success do I want? Without you what does all this world, all my life, mean to me after this? I knew long ago I couldn't be happy, but I didn't know why. I know now what I wanted all along. I can do something in the world, I can succeed, I can be somebody now—and now I want to, I want to! Why, I can see it plainly enough now—all straight out, ahead of me—all straight ahead of us two!'"

"How like a man you are!" she said slowly. "You seek your own success, although your path lies over a woman's disgrace and ruin."

"Haven't you ever thought of the other side of this at all? Can't a woman ever think of mercy to a man? Can't she ever blame herself just for being Eve, for being the incarnate temptation that she is to any real man? I reckon it's ruin for both of us."

"Yes, it is for both."

"No, I'll not admit it!" he blazed out. "If I've been strong enough to pull you down I'm strong enough to carry you up again. Only don't force the worst part of me to the front all the time."

"A gentle wooer, indeed! And yet you blame me that I cannot see a man's side in a case like this."

"But why should a man see any but a man's side of it? Things don't go by reason, after all. The world goes, I reckon, because there is a man's side to it. Anyhow, I am as I am. What ever you do here, whatever you are, don't try to wheedle me nor ask me to see your side when there is only one side to this. If any man ever lifted hand or eye to you I'd kill him. I'll not give up one jot of the right I've got to you, little as it is—I've taken the right to hold you here and talk to you, I reckon, over free and thrall."

With rude strength and pride he swept an arm widely around him, covering half the circle of the valley. "It is mine!" he said slowly. "Fit for a king, isn't it? Yes, fit for a queen. It is almost fit for you."

And now the chill of autumn lay in the twilight. Night was coming—the time when all creatures, save ravening night feeders, feel apprehension, crave shelter, search out a haven for repose. This woman was alone and weary, much in need of some place to rest her head. Every fiber in her heart craved shelter, comfort, security, protection. Dunwoody turned, offered her a hand and led her to the wide double doors.

"Sally, come here," called Dunwoody to one of the row of grinning negro servants who were loosely lined up in the hall, as much in curiosity as deference, to give their master his only welcome home. "Take this lady up to the room in the east part. See that she has everything she wants. She is not to be disturbed there until morning, do you hear, Sally? When you come down I want to see you again. You others there, make your duty to this lady. Call her Miss Josephine. When she wants anything, you jump and get it. Go on, now!"

They scattered grinning, all but the bent and grizzled old woman Sally, who now came forward. She looked with blank brown eyes at the newcomer, herself inscrutable as the sphinx. She took up the traveling bags and led the way up the narrow stairway which made out of the central hall.

"Sally," said Josephine, turning, when they reached the stairway, "where's my own maid—the other—Jeanette?"

"I dunno, ma'am," said Sally. "I reckon she's all right, though. Dis heah's yuah room, ma'am, if you please." She shuffled ahead, into a tall and wide room, which overlooked the lawn and the approaching road.

Once alone, Josephine flung herself face downward upon the bed and burst into a storm of tears, her fine courage for once, outward. She wept until utterly spent. A hard hand gently edged under her heaving shoulder. "Thah now, honey, don't cry! God A'mighty, girl, don't cry dat a way. What is wrong? Tell me." Sympathy even of this sort was balm to a woman wholly unweaned. Josephine found her head on the old negro woman's shoulder.

"Now you jus' lay right quiet, ma'am," went on Sally. "Ise gwine to git you a little something warm to drink and something to eat right soon, an den Ise gwine to put you all to bed nice and clean, and in de mawnin' you'll feel like you was another lady, you suttinly will, ma'am."

"I suppose you are keeper of the prison," commented Josephine bitterly. "Dis ain't no prison, ma'am. Ise bin heah a long time 'mong dese triffin' niggers. Dis ain't no prison—but we needs a lady heah to run things, is you come for dat?"

"No, no," said Josephine. "I'm just—I'm just—I'm going away as soon as I can."

"Sho, now! Huc'um you heah, ma'am?"

"It was a mistake."

"I didn't know white folks evah done nothin' they didn't want to do," commented Sally. "But don't you mind. Ef you wants me, jes' call for Sally."

"Toll me, Sally, isn't there any Mrs. Dunwoody here?" demanded Josephine suddenly.

The face of the old woman remained inscrutable and Josephine could see no sign except that a sort of film crossed her eyes, as though telling some inmost thought.

"Ef dey was, I doan' reckon you all would have come heah, would you? Now you lay down and git comfortable. You suttinly is a right handsome lady, ma'am!"

The old woman shuffled from the room, to join her master at the foot of the stairs.

"Where is she, Sally?" demanded Dunwoody. "And how is she?"

"She's right tired, sah," said Sally noncommittally. And then: "Mighty fine lookin' lady, sah. An' she is a lady! Huc'um her here, Marse Waddy? What you all—"

"What did she say to you?"

"Nothin' 'cept she's gwine git away right soon. White folks' business ain't none o' my business."

"Well, never you mind about all that, Sally. Now listen. It's your business to keep her there, in that room. When she wants anything, get it. But don't you talk to her. If she goes to walk, keep her in sight. She doesn't need no letters to any one and doesn't talk to strangers, do you understand?"

"I reckon I does, sah." Then, with something of the liberty of the old servant, Sally said: "Marster, is you married to dat dere lady? Ef you isn't, is you gwine to marry her?"

"It's enough for you to know that, you're responsible for her. If she turns up missing any time, you'll be missing yourself not long after."

Left alone Josephine, St. Auban at last attempted to pull herself together. With the instinct of a newly-caged animal, she made a little tour of the room. First she noted the depth of the windows, their height above the ground. No escape there, that was sure, unless one, catlike, could climb down this light ladder up which the ivy ran between the cornice and the ground. No, it was a prison.

In the room itself were good yet simple furnishings. The wall paper was of a small and ancient design. In places it hung torn. The furniture was old mahogany, apparently made in an earlier generation.

She pushed back the heavy dresser, but the wall was without opening behind it. She looked for the key to the door and was glad to find the lock in order. For the first time now she laid off her bonnet, unfastened her wrap. With a hand which trembled she made some sort of attempt at toilet, staring into the mirror at a face scarcely recognized as her own. The corners of its mouth were drooping plaintively. A faint blue lay beneath the eyes.

She faced the fact that she must pass the night alone. Yet she slept, wearied to exhaustion. The night was cool, the air fresh from the mountains coming in through the opened window and bringing with it calm.

Dawn came. A chirping cedar bird, busy in the nearby shrubbery, awakened her with a care-free note. The surge of young blood came back in her veins. The morning was there, the hills were there, the world was there. Hope of escape began once more.

A knock came at the door, really for the third time, although for the first time heard. Old Sally entered, bearing her tray with coffee.

"Now, you lay right still! What you is, ma'am," she began. "You all wants a lil' bit o' coffee. Then I'll bring you up some real breakfast—how you like yuah'nigs? Ma'am, you suttinly is lookin' fine dis mawnin'. I'll fetch you yuah tub o' watah right soon now."

The old serving woman slowly moved about here and there in the apartment, intent upon duties of her own. While thus engaged Josephine, standing femininely engaged before her glass, chanced to catch sight of her in the mirror. She had swiftly slipped over and opened the door of a wardrobe. Over her arm now was some feminine garment.

"What have you there?" demanded Josephine, turning as swiftly.

"Jus' some things Ise gwine take away to make room for you, thah's all, ma'am."

Josephine approached and took up in her own hands these evidences of an earlier occupancy of the room. They were garments of a day gone by. The silks were faded, dingy, worn in the creases from sheer disuse.

"Whose were these, Sally?" demanded Josephine.

"I dunno, ma'am. Ise been 'mos'ly in the kitchen, ma'am."

Josephine regarded her closely. No sign of emotion showed on that brown mask. The gray brows above the small eyes did not flicker. "I suppose these may have belonged to Mr. Dunwoody's mother," said Josephine carelessly.

"Yassam."

"His sister?"

"Yassam."

"Or his wife perhaps?"

"Yassam, of they really wuz one."

"Was there ever?" demanded Josephine sharply.

"Might 'a' been none, er might 'a' been a dozen fir's I know. Us folks don't study much 'bout what white folks does."

"You must have known. Don't talk nonsense."

Temptation showed on Sally's face. The next instant the film came again over the small brown eyes, the mask shut down again as the ancient negro racial secretiveness resumed sway. Josephine did not ask for what she knew would be a lie.

"Where is my own maid, Jeanette?" she demanded. "I am anxious about her."

"I reckon she's all right."

"Can you bring her to me?"

"I'll try, ma'am."

New Thought Rare.

A new thought is a very rare thing, and it would be a magnificent creature to catch. The only things I can think of that one would really call 'new thoughts' would be certain celebrated jokes, certain scientific discoveries and a few less frequent cases of a really original argument used in an old controversy.—G. K. Chesterton.

It's Olive Tablets For You!

Beware of the habit of constipation. It develops from just a few constipated days, especially in Old People, unless you take yourself in hand.

Coax the jaded bowel muscles back to normal action with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for cathartics. Don't force them to unnatural action with severe medicines or by merely flushing out the intestines.

There is no getting over your scruples; let his grave be dug twelve feet; that is four feet below your consecrated ground."

Don't. Make hay while the sun shines, but don't get the idea that you are the only haymaker in the business.

TELL IT TO YOUR NEIGHBORS. If you are one of those fortunate women who have found relief through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, from the dreadful suffering incident to some female derangement, tell of it to your neighbor whom you hear complain of dreadful backache, bearing down pains, dizziness, headaches, irregularities, nervousness and despondency, and when she finds relief in nature's remedy for women's ills, as thousands of other women have, she will bless you for telling her about it.

DINNER STORIES

An Irishman took a contract to dig a well. When he had dug about 25 feet down he came one morning and found it had fallen in and that it was nearly to the top.

Pat looked cautiously around and saw that no person was near, then took off his hat and coat and hung them on a windlass, crawled into some bushes and awaited events.

In a short time the neighbors discovered that the wall had fallen in, and seeing Pat's hat and coat on the windlass, they supposed that he was at the bottom of the excavation.

A few hours of brisk digging cleared the loose earth from the well. Just as the excavators had reached the bottom and were wondering where the body was, Pat came out of the bushes and good naturedly thanked the diggers for relieving him of his job.

Moliere, the great comic poet of France, died while performing a part of one of his own plays. The archbishop of Paris would not allow his body to be inhumed in consecrated ground. Therefore the king sent for the archbishop and expostulated with him, but he was obstinate and would not willingly comply with his majesty's request. The king desired to know how many feet deep the holy ground reached. The bishop replied, "About eight."

"Well," replied the king, "I find that there is no getting over your scruples; let his grave be dug twelve feet; that is four feet below your consecrated ground."

The collection embraces hundreds of volumes relating to Napoleon, his family, his marshals and other persons who figured prominently during the Napoleonic period. BATTLE OF SAN JACINTO IS CELEBRATED IN TEXAS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Austin, Texas, April 21.—Schools throughout the state enjoyed a holiday today in honor of the battle of San Jacinto. Texas is very proud of this day, which recalls the crushing defeat administered the Mexicans after the massacres at the Alamo and at Goliad. Santa Anna was taken prisoner. Sam Houston commanded the Texans. It was through Houston's cleverness that the Mexican army was caught with the impassable San Jacinto river behind them, although the feat of "Dead Smith" in skirting the enemy's line and cutting the only bridge made the Mexican defeat complete.

The Theatre

WHAT'S IN A NAME. Blanche Morrison, the prima-donna of "The Bohemian Girl" company that comes here shortly, took up a career on the operatic stage not because she wanted to but largely on account of her friends insisting that she wasn't qualified for it. After two years of study at the New England Conservatory of music and a year under the celebrated Mme. Marchese in Paris, Miss Morrison on returning to this country succeeded Grace Van Stoddard as prima-donna of the famous Bostonians an organization that numbered among its members Barnabee, MacDonald, Earl, D'Arville, Cowies, Frothingham, Davis and many other important people of the singing world. Following her connection with the Bostonians, Miss Morrison became a member of the Fritie Schaff Company, as alternate with the star. After this engagement she became associated with the Aborn's and has under their management acquired a repertoire of over seventy operas. While the roles she has sang are many, she delights most in the portrayal of the character of "Arlene" in "The Bohemian Girl," as it lends itself more to her natural talents than do any other of the varied roles she has assumed. In speaking of her career, Miss Morrison said that the greatest of her worries previous to an actual engagement was deciding on a name for the stage. All my friends insisted that as it was about to take up a stage career, I should assume some high sounding name. This idea, however, was dispelled when my father declared that the Morrison brand has been good enough for him and his forefathers, and would doubtless not interfere with attaining a real position in the operatic world.

Scene in the Aborn Opera Company's big revival of "The Bohemian Girl," at the Myers Theatre on Friday night, April 25.
